Having Trouble Making Ends Meet? Join the Club: So Are Town's Two Municipalities

When you pay your electric bill these days or add up what you owe on gasoline credit cards, you can hardly believe the jump in cost from last year.

Where to find the money in the family budget to close the gap? Well, that vacation fund, a decision to postpone a new car, money you'd put aside for a rainy day....

It's exactly the same in Borough and Township Halls. Municipal governments have been squeezed by inflation like everyone else, and the signs are especially visible this time of year: state law makes a municipality wait until November 1 before taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another. So almost every meeting of Council or Committee deals with these budget transfers, as Princeton officials try to make ends meet.

"Gasoline... we didn't anticipate that it would double in price," says the Township's Girard Miller. "It went from 21.6 cents a gallon to 43.8 between January and August. In October, Federal regulations changed and a municipal discount was reinstituted, so now we pay 35 cents."

"Of course, by the end of '73, we knew gasoline would go up and we planned for some increase, but we didn't know it would go up so early in the year and so sharply."

Borough, Township and Princeton Regional Schools buy gasoline under Mercer County's joint purchasing plan, which gives all participants a better price than any could get separately--the prices quoted above, compared to what the average motorist pays at the pump, are some indication of the good deal. But still...

In the Township alone, police cars use 2,400 gallons a month and the road crews 1,200. The Borough, in addition, has to buy gasoline for fire trucks. And there are cars for the health departments and other municipal departments ("Any new cars are going to be compacts," Borough Administrator Robert F. Mooney has been say this fall.)

With burglaries on the increase in the Township, there are more police cars out on patrol--more gasoline. And everybody is praying for a mild winter, to save on fuel used by snowplows and trucks.

In action last month, the Township had to transfer $3,600 to meet additional police expenses, and most of this sum was for gasoline.

"It's only an 11.5 percent increase," Mr. Mooney observes, "but rock salt is $18.40 a ton this year, compared to $16.50 a ton last year and we always order 40 tons right away--the first big snow takes it all. Sand we mix with it, that's up 26 percent per ton."

Remember what you paid for anti-freeze this winter, if you could find it? The price to the towns is $4.50 a gallon, compared to 98¢ last year.

Running a quick finger down the Borough's shopping list, Mr. Mooney finds 34.8¢ per gallon paid this summer for the Number 2 fuel oil that heats the three firehouses, the Borough garage and Borough Hall. It was 17.3¢ in the summer of 1973.

Street lighting is the municipal equivalent of your own electric bill, and the Township has just tran-

Blinding Arc Light at McCarter Responsible For Anne Sheldon's Broken Foot and Six Ribs

When actors want to wish each other "Good luck!" they say "Break a leg!" It goes back to a long-ago understudy who spent night after night in the wings praying "Break a leg!" every time the leading actor went on stage. The actor had a long run without accident, so "Break a leg" immediately became a good luck talisman.

Now, about Anne Sheldon. She didn't break a leg, but would you accept a broken foot and six ribs?

It was Anne Sheldon, as surely everyone knows by now, who fell exuberantly into the orchestra pit the opening night of P.J. & B.'s "Hello, Dolly!" at McCarter. She, of course, was Dolly.

"I don't know how I broke that foot, but I broke the six ribs when I hit the side of the auxiliary piano they had down there."

Runway at Angle. "Hello, Dolly!" has a runway angling out from each side of the stage and extending across the front. Anne had been concerned about that runway earlier, and had frequently practiced its three-foot width between regular rehearsals.

"I was afraid of falling into the audience," she said this week, resting under a pink blanket in her Skillman home. "Peter Cook, of the McCarter staff, put up a two-inch rail with glow-tape and a string of Christmas lights, and I worked it alone to see how it would go."

"Well, we did Gower Champion's choreography, with Dolly roaring across at the end to take bows—and I've never heard such a perfectly marvellous audience—so full of cheers! I did something every actress knows better than to do. Half-way back in the house was this wonderful, loud cheering section and I wanted to say 'Thank you!' to them, so I turned toward them waving my arms. And an arc caught my eyes and I was blinded."

Ten Foot Drop. "Instead of stopping until I could see again, I kept moving rapidly and bowing, heading into stage right. I was a foot-and-a-half short and I went ten feet down into that pit."

McCarter's pit, according to Anne, is exceptionally deep

HELLO, DOLLY: "I'm fine!" was Anne Sheldon's greeting to the stunned "Hello, Dolly!" audience after she'd tumbled into McCarter's orchestra pit.

because at one time an elevator was planned for it. She estimates ten feet. Other estimates say the fall was about eight.

"It's funny how slow it all was. My foot has slipped, I thought. Can I recover? No. I must get both feet off, stay in control, jump and relax. (Thank God, I know how to fall!) I must break my fall on the closed lid of that piano, and protect my head and my neck. I didn't QUITE make it to the closed lid, and I hit the piano edge with my six ribs."

"I was frightened that I couldn't breathe. I was aware of the audience still up there and I said 'Help me up.' You know, I'm not terribly brave, but I did want to say 'I'm fine.'"

A Call is Answered. The classic call, "Is there a doctor in the house?" brought forth x-ray expert Henry Powsner, who was back there in the chorus in his red waiter's jacket from the last scene, and Archibald Sheeran, who was out front cheering.

"I must have been knocked out for a minute, because the first thing I remember was Dr. Powsner kneeling beside me." And before long, x-rays had discovered the six ribs and the broken foot....and a broken heart.

"It just broke my heart! Such a marvellous cast, and the way they supported the stand-in from New York was simply great."

"I really can't stand the thought that people may think McCarter was at fault. That was certainly not the case. And it was in no way the fault of the lighting designer, either. And certainly not—I do not plan any legal action."

Milton Lyon, director of "Hello, Dolly!" says the runaway has been the bane of "Dolly's" existence. Pearl Bailey, Carol Channing and Betsy Palmer have all fallen from it. Now than Anne Sheldon has, too, they're in good company.

The board, at its meeting last Tuesday, voted unanimously to recommend that Committee extend for one year Mr. Yedlin's use variance to build 100 units of public housing on land bordered by Mt. Lucas and Ewing.

It is expected that Committee will act on the recommendation before the end of the year, either on Monday night or at the annual year-end special meeting on December 27.

At Monday's meeting, Committee plans to act on the proposed joint site plan review ordinance, tabled since discussion late last spring. The plan is to amend the present ordinance in regard to its effective date, and then adopt it.

It is possible that another ordinance may be introduced (if it is ready) amending the one just adopted. This new measure answers some Borough reservations about the original proposal for a joint Borough-Township site plan review measure. Borough officials have felt that small property-owners who wanted to make simple changes in their properties shouldn't have to go through the lengthy procedures required of larger land-holders.

Agreement with the Borough on this question was reached after a meeting on November 21.

Budget Problems

ferred money to meet a $2,500 anticipated increase in this bill. In September 1973, for example, the monthly bill was $2,296. In September of this year, it was $2,575. The Township has a new street—Bunn Drive—and street lighting on that will add to the bill.

The Borough's street lighting was budgeted at $31,000 for the current year. It will be $39,000 for 1975. The kind of cold patch the Borough uses to fix up the streets, increased 43.9 percent between last summer and this: from $9 a ton to $12.95. The Township's brand has increased from $8.50 a ton to $11.50.

One of the sharpest jumps, for the Township, has been in three-eighths-inch stone: $3.15 a ton to $8.30. (The Borough has no need for this material.)

A sharp jump, for the Borough has been a 30 percent increase—in a pair of 15 percent leaps—for fire equipment like nozzles, valves, helmets, boots, coats. Inexplicably, hose has only dribbled up 5 percent. (A fire truck that cost $42,500 in 1973, the new Mack for Mercer Engine Number 3, would cost between $56,000 and $60,000 today, the Borough has learned.)

Triple Jump. Liquid chlorine, used in the sewer plant, has zoomed an astronomical 158 percent. Last year, it was 64 cents a pound and today it's $1.65. The sewer plant uses 48 tons a year, which is a lot of revised arithmetic. The Township buys chlorine, too, as banker for the community swimming pool. A chemical called Digestol, required by the sewer plant, is up 10.5 percent.

Why chlorine? Apparently basic materials used in production are being diverted to more profitable products.

In both Borough and Township, governments have had to scratch to find an unexpected 1½ percent more for so-called "civilian" salaries. When the police won an 8½ percent salary package, the salaries of other municipal employees, scheduled to rise only 7 percent, had to be brought up to the police level.

This means not only a salary increase (retroactive to January 1) but also more money for Social Security payments and pensions.

Health Insurance. Up. Illness often cripples a family, when it strikes during inflationary times like these. It was so in the Borough, as well. Half a dozen people, either employees or members of employees' families, were stricken with major illnesses, and this has jacked up the Borough's Blue Cross payments by 29 percent. "Blue Cross paid out $37,000 more for the Borough than they took in, in premiums," Mr. Mooney says.

Next to these personnel items, perhaps the biggest inflationary sock to Princeton has come from the public library, and this over-run is chiefly due to the increased cost of utilities to provide light and heat for the building.

The Township pays most of the cost of running the library—two-thirds, opposed to the Borough's one-third share. The Township share of the an 8½ percent salary additional expenses is $6,388, the Borough's $3,291.

Of this amount, $6,300 represents the additional cost of heat and light for the year 1974. There is $2,500 in additional salaries, $750 increase (retroactive to January 1) but also more commercial cleaning company raised its fee.

Cutbacks. What to do? "These cost increases result in not buying authorized equipment," and Mr. Miller scans his budget sheets and points out the road equipment the Township had hoped to buy. "The leaf vacuum went up in cost, and with the increased cost of stone and gravel, we've had to defer buying a chipper. We have a 1963 backhoe we planned to replace in 1976—estimated cost $15,700, but now it looks more like $20-25,000."

"We try for as much economy as possible," Mr. Miller explains, "but the Township isn't a large enough shop for systems analysis and all that fancy stuff. There just isn't that much to cut back on."

As a rule, the Township figures that expenses rising in one area will be balanced by price decreases in another, but Mr. Miller says there were no price decreases at all, anywhere, in '74.

Juggling. So—out of one pocket, into another.

To cover increased costs for the library, police department, street lighting and minor increases incurred by the sewer system, the Township dipped into the Public Employees' Retirement System for $2,500; legal expenses for $3,600, fire hydrant service for $400 and the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority loan for a whopping $6,388.

"I don't know what we'd do without it!" sighs Administrator Joseph R. Nini, in gratitude for that Authority sugar-bowl.

The Authority has asked each of its six member towns for $25,000 a year to get things started—if they ever do. The first year, they drew only $2,000. The next two years, the Township only lent $20,000 and the Authority only drew $1,000 in July, but was implemented for each year. This leaves a nice, plump cushion.

There are also the traffic lights, ready for Snowden Lane and Kingston Road, but delayed by shortage of parts. The Township has put up $2,500 and hasn't yet had to pay it out. Another cushion.

Hidden Revenues. The Borough, too, has money under the mattress.

"We're dipping in everywhere," Mr. Mooney explains. Traffic lights planned for Harrison and Prospect and Harrison and Franklin will be funded by the Federal urbanization program, leaving the Borough with a windfall of $24,000.

Planning ahead is a bad dream in circumstances like these.

"We can't build anything in for '75," Mr. Mooney continues. "We'd have to pad certain items and that wouldn't be fair to the taxpayer. We have to hope for a windfall, like those traffic lights, or we go to an emergency appropriation."

Across the border, Mr. Miller and Mr. Nini shake their heads over the same problem.

"We don't know the 1975 inflation rate, of course," Mr. Miller says, "the problem in budgeting is to see ahead to where you'll be in November and December, but it's hard to guess."

Mr. Nini points out, as still another example of the problem, the increase in postage rates. It was expected in July, but was implemented five months early—in February. And he adds gloomily, "Now there's talk of still another increase."

Mr. Mooney sees Bell Telephone's request for a 20 percent increase in his crystal ball and points out that even if the company is granted 8 percent or 10 percent, it could be a blow.

And so the litany goes....a 70 percent increase in toilet paper costs....plywood to build playground ping-pong tables up 23 percent....automobile tires up 37.4 percent....paperclips up 100 percent (from 10 cents in November of last year, to 20 cents now)....Scotch-tape from 88 cents to 99 cents....shorthand pads from 23 cents to 47 cents....a 10 percent increase in RCA's service costs to police radio-communications equipment....a ream of paper, $2.77 in September, compared to $1.99 in January. Anybody even want to think about '76?

Indecision over State Aid for Schools Balloons Princeton's Budgeting Problems

A tentative 1975-76 school budget of $8,322,660, up 2 percent from the current budget, will be presented next Tuesday at the December meeting of the Princeton Regional Board of Education. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in Community Park School.

"This budget is tentative—and never more so!" said board president Winthrop Pike at a budget press conference this week. The reason is no New Jersey district knows how much state aid to expect because courts declared unconstitutional the present way of financing public education.

Princeton's pessimistic estimate, given Tuesday by board finance chairman Philip Cruickshank, approximately 50 percent less in

TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund at $747

"Sometimes young teenagers reach depths of true despair and thrash out at life. Ron belongs to what Family Service calls a 'multi-problem family.' No father, he left years ago. The mother...diagnosed by doctors as a hopeless schizophrenic. The older sister, bed-ridden."

"In school, Ron was worse than destructive—he was self-destructive. He cut classes, his hostility led him into constant fights, he began to experiment with drugs. Guidance counsellors in school tried to help, but finally realized that Ron had to get away in order to survive."

"Ron's problems were solved some months after he was enrolled in a boarding school, where he is now on the honor roll and has achieved a dramatic change in his entire outlook on life. Funds raised by a past TOWN TOPICS Christmas Appeal aided materially in placing him in the school."

Other young people as well as adults in Princeton are in need of assistance. Contributions to the 1974 Christmas Fund total $747.21, and additional contributions are essential to aid the numerous cases certified by the Family Service Agency. Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund, mailed to P.O. Box 664, Princeton, or brought to 4 Mercer Street.

ways it can be pared still deeper.

The three board members present at the press conference commented on some of these:

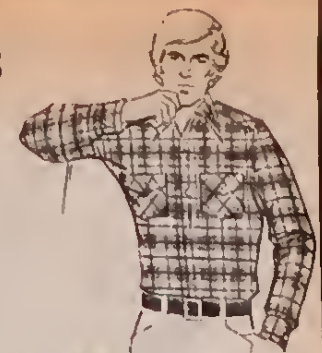

"Staff reduction is intricate and difficult," Mr. Pike observed, "state tenure laws, the number of teachers on tenure, the ramifications of our employee agreements...."

All three, and Superintendent Philip E. McPherson assured reporters the board does not intend to economize by changing the number of children in a class room. This is approximately 20-25 in elementary schools, 25-30 at the high school. The district's ratio is 1-13.5 to 1-14.5, with a 1-12.1 at PHS, the superintendent said. This means a ratio of one staff member to 13.5 students and includes services of staff who are not classroom teachers: music and art teachers, psychologists, and so on.

Who's Responsible? "The state, and the law, indicates that hazardous routes are a municipal responsibility, rather than a school board one," Mr. Pike said, "and we've communicated this to the governing bodies. This simply means it's up to the municipalities to put in sidewalks, add crossing guards, and so on. About 90 percent of the hazardous-route kids live in the Township."

in state aid, down to $450,000 or so, from the present $900,000. The only state money Princeton expects is for buses and special services for atypical children.

Because of the uncertainty, there won't be a budget brochure this year, Mr. Pike said. Taxpayers can learn about the tentative budget by attending next Tuesday's meeting, when there will be a presentation. And if the board finds out anything more from the state, a mimeographed flyer may be run off.

Public hearing will be Tuesday, January 21, a week in advance of the regular January hearing.

"The state may tell us to postpone the budget referendum and hold it after the February school board elections," Mr. Pike revealed.

Other Revenues Lost. The state aid cut comes at just the wrong time for Princeton. The current year is the last one for West Windsor-Plainsboro students attending Princeton High, and the tuition loss will be about $336,000.

Wage settlements and price increases account for a jump of $670,000 in the budget. Of that, $476,000 comes from a 7.2 percent salary increase based on wage settlements already negotiated. The teachers' contract, incidentally, is for two years and represents a welcome area of certainty for the board in this wobbly year.

Phasing out West Windsor-Plainsboro means a drop of 3.7 percent in student enrollment to 3,408. But completion of the first phase of PCH Village will mean about 130 more children in the schools. The drop in enrollment comes at the high school level, the PCH increase will probably be in the elementary schools.

Because of the enrollment drop, about 20 teaching positions will go, the board has revealed. Some teachers are expected to leave automatically as a result of their retirement, moving out of town and so on, but this number is not precisely known. A "staff-retention plan," in effect for the past two years, will be retained in at least modified form, promised Mrs. Hannah Fox, board vice-president.

The board has made cuts amounting to $507,000. Some of them:

- No more bus transportation for children living on "hazardous routes." The state doesn't reimburse for this kind of busing.

- No more pre-Kindergarten (and hence no need for a pre-K bus).

- Total transportation saving: $50-60,000.

- Elimination of some PHS relocatables, the outhouses that are leased by the board each year.

- Cuts in administrative and supervisory positions.

- Reductions in Staff Services and substitute teaching positions.

- Economics in plant operation.

- Elimination of land-scaping program.

"A well-rounded program for the students is still our prime obligation," Mrs. Fox said, adding that the board is still examining the budget and Learning Community supporters have expressed fears that it would be sacrificed to economy. If Learning Community changes make more staff available, the savings would go to the total PHS program and the board doesn't think it's that much of a saving, Mr. Pike said.

The board does want to avoid over-staffing of the Community, Mr. Cruickshank commented.

"Experimental programs must sustain themselves on the basic resources available," was Dr. McPherson's comment.

Because the budget is so tentative, a tax estimate is difficult to make, Mr. Pike said. However, the recommended budget would increase Borough taxes between 2.8 percent and 6.5 percent, and Township taxes between 1.6 percent and 5.3 percent.

This means a Borough house assessed at $50,000 with a market value of $75,000 would pay $28-$63 more a year. A Township house with a market value of $50,000 would pay $15-$48 more a year.

From last weekend's highly unseasonable high of 58 degrees (and mean temperature 18 degrees above normal), it took only 48 hours for the weather to feel like snow. One of these days, it will be working against it, however, is the law of averages. In the first eight days of the month, total rainfall has surpassed the amount (around 3.5 inches) that is normal for all of December.

For the immediate future, thermometer readings will continue at or slightly above normal, averaging around 38 degrees. Despite the unusual amount of precipitation to date, the Man said he has not turned his back on the idea of a White Christmas.

MRS. O'HARA KILLED
Victim of Car Crash. Mrs. Katherine O'Hara, widow of novelist John O'Hara, was killed Saturday night when the car she was driving smashed into a telephone pole on a severe curve of Province Line Road in Lawrence Township.

Mrs. O'Hara was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Medical Center shortly after the accident was reported to police at 7:38 p.m. The ambulance crew had tried artificial resuscitation unsuccessfully at the scene. Dr.

David A. Fluck, Mercer County pathologist, attributed the death of Mrs. O'Hara to chest injuries and hemorrhaging.

Mrs. O'Hara, a resident of Princeton since 1955, was reported by police to have been driving east toward Route 1, approaching the wooden bridge that crosses the Delaware and Raritan Canal, when the accident occurred. She was immediately discovered by Mrs. Frances A. Jantos and several other near-by residents.

Identification was established by police through insurance papers in the car and initials in Mrs. O'Hara's wedding band. The car she was driving bore the license plate JOH 1.

Mrs. O'Hara, 65, lived on Pretty Brook Road. A native of New York City, she was married to John O'Hara in 1955, a second marriage for both of them.

Mr. O'Hara, who died in 1970, was the author of many well-known novels, including "Butterfield 8", "Ten North Frederick", "Pal Joey", "From the Terrace", and "Appointment in Samarra".

Philanthropic Works. Mrs. O'Hara was for many years an executive board member and president of the Volunteer Association of the N.J. Neuro-Psychiatric Institute. She was especially interested in the work being done to treat schizophrenia and certain other forms of mental illness using drugs.

At various times, she was the general chairman of the April fund-raising event for the Institute. She also co-chaired the 1974 Christmas Boutique fund raising for the Princeton Medical Center.

In memory of her husband, Mrs. O'Hara established the YM-YWCA Library in Princeton and the O'Hara Memorial Room in the Pattee Library at Pennsylvania State University.

She is survived by a son,

Courtlandt D. B. Bryan of flagged down near Nassau Guilford, Conn.; two daughters, Mrs. Joan B. Gates of Rockleigh and Mrs. Wylie O'Hara Doughty of Aspen, Col.; a brother, Courtlandt D. Barnes, Jr. of Carbondale, Col.; and eight grandchildren.

The funeral was held Tuesday in the Princeton University Chapel with the Rev. Ernest Gordon officiating. Interment was in Princeton Cemetery, with arrangements by the Mather Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be made to the Princeton YMCA.

MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH

By Wheels of Tractor Trailer. Archie J. Callicut, a retired 55-year old steamfitter and plumber who lived alone at 161 Ewing Street, was killed instantly Friday when he apparently became entangled in and was crushed by the rear wheels of a tractor trailer. The tragedy took place near his home at the intersection of Ewing and North Harrison.

Rushed to Princeton Medical Center by the Princeton First Aid Squad, Mr. Callicut was pronounced dead by Dr. James Daubert at 1:17 p.m. An autopsy was performed the same afternoon by Mercer County Medical Examiner Dr. David Fluck, but Borough police said Tuesday they have not yet received his report. It was evident at the scene, they said, that the victim had sustained massive internal injuries.

For a report of the funeral arrangements for Mr. Callicut who was buried in North Carolina, see page 25.

As yet, no charges have been filed against the driver, Danny W. Bishop, 21, of Flemington, who police say has been very co-operative. Ptl. James Agins, who conducted the initial investigation, is continuing the police investigation into the unusual accident. "It's been very difficult to determine how the victim got under the wheels," said Capt. Theodore Lewis.

The driver was unaware that he had struck Mr. Callicut until he was stopped a few miles from the accident scene. He was operating a huge flatbed tractor trailer loaded with concrete sewerage pipes, with 4 sets of dual rear wheels-eight on each side.

As reconstructed by police, the truck driver had turned off Route 206 onto Ewing Street and had come to a stop where Ewing intersects with North Harrison. The victim was seen by a witness walking in Ewing Street along side the truck. Somehow, as the truck turned right from Ewing onto North Harrison the victim became entangled in the rear wheels, was crushed and dragged 4 1/2 to five feet. Unaware of the tragedy, the truck driver continued on.

However, a motorist behind the truck, police said, saw the victim rolling out from under the truck. A witness stopped another car and told the driver to halt the truck which was

6 School Officials Downgrade '73 State Test Scores Now Available to Parent or Pupil

If you want to know how your child did on the 1973 state-wide tests—or if you're a student and want to know—you can call for an appointment and a school official will sit down with you and go over the results, item by item. But be forewarned: Charles Huchet, director of Student Services for the Princeton public schools, and Hilton Anderson, school psychologist, regard the tests as a "meaningless compromise" between two theories of testing. Superintendent Philip E. McPherson says they are badly planned and "not very useful."

Tests in reading and math skills have now been given three times throughout the state of New Jersey: in November of 1972, '73 and '74. Results of the first administration were released this spring, but not to individuals who took the test. This is the first time test results have been opened to individuals. Princeton expects to have results of the 1974 tests, administered last month, by early spring of next year.

The 1973 tests, whose results were released last week, were given throughout the state to students in 4th, 7th and 10th grades. Overall, Princeton students consistently scored higher than students in comparable districts, or as well as such students. Princeton is compared to other Regional districts, to districts in Mercer County, to districts in southwest New Jersey and of course, to students throughout the state. Regional districts constitute New Jersey's highest scoring comparison group, and Princeton students scored at least 5 per cent higher than these other Regional students on 47 per cent of the test items. They scored roughly equal to other Regional students in 51 per cent of the items, and 5 per cent poorer on less than 2 per cent of the items.

What's Wrong. Why the complaints? Princeton's chief complaint is that the state's testing program "represents a meaningless compromise of two theories or purposes of testing."

You can use tests to compare groups. These "normative tests" are designed to provide scores that can be compared across groups, and most standardized tests are like this.

Then, you can use tests to see if a student or a class, has achieved a certain educational objective—like learning to use fractions. These "criterion referenced tests" can be used to develop a profile of skill or weakness in certain areas, and show where a student or a class needs help.

The present state assessment program appears to be attempting to combine into one instrument, both these types. It would appear that it is accomplishing neither," say Dr. Huchet and Dr. Anderson.

If you're going to compare school systems to see which are better and which need help, normative tests are in order, and this kind of comparison is one reason for the state-wide tests. But administering them every fourth year would be enough, say Huchet and Anderson.

Problem of Interpretation. Both men cite difficulties with the state's method of interpreting test results. "The state requires, in effect, that tests be analyzed item by item," Dr. Huchet says, "but the state hasn't provided any information on item reliability—that is, do individual items consistently measure the same thing? Consequently, local school districts are left to determine for themselves what difference between various groups in 'percent correct' should be considered significant."

Discussing the 7th grade reading section for example, Dr. Huchet says that, while Princeton's 7th graders performed quite satisfactorily, the tests "inadequately sample the skills being measured. Often there were only two items measuring a skill."

Also, items varied widely in difficulty, and many of the clusters—items grouped in clusters—"appear to be a potpourri of items, raising questions as to whether the cluster has any real meaning."

In the 7th grade math test, (Princeton students performed better than other Regional students on 70 per cent of the items) it's obvious that additional instruction is indicated in several areas, Dr. Huchet points out, but you can't tell from the tests whether students should already have had this material, or whether it should be taught at higher grade levels.

In the 10th-grade reading test, a committee of teachers felt that there were 11 items for which more than one of the alternate choices would be correct. Also, for a test of basic reading skills, Dr. Huchet and Dr. Anderson felt that it was inappropriate to include sections on such sophisticated areas as "analogies" and "figurative language."

Too Few Items. In the 10th-grade math test, it's difficult to determine whether a student has a skill because there aren't enough items testing it, the psychologists say. Also, the difficulty of the items wasn't enough to challenge the group of students who had had more than two years of college preparatory math.

If you make an appointment to learn test results, you should call the school where your child was a student in 4th, 7th or 10th grades. Either the principal or a learning disability specialist will tell you whether each item was answered correctly or not. There are not total test scores. Princeton's schools know, by and large, what individual student difficulties are, Dr. Huchet says, and he adds, the conference you have will probably not tell you anything new.

FAST RAISES $750
For World Hunger Relief. 300 Princeton University students missed at least one meal on November 21, thereby helping raise $750 in support of a "Fast for a World Harvest". The fast was sponsored by Oxfam-America in a national fund-raising effort in which more than 400 universities participated.

The $750, which included donations from outside the University, will be used in famine relief programs abroad. Those interested in further action or self-education concerning the world food situation are invited to an open meeting next Tuesday at 8 in Room 138 of the Frick Chemical Laboratories. They may also call Peter Shenkin at 924-5315 after 8 p.m. for information.

"I was going up a hill and making a slight right turn," said the victim, Peter R. McCrohan, 278 Hamilton, "when I ran across a patch of ice. It was quick and I went down." The frame of his motorcycle was bent and its fuel tank ruptured.

Police said that the ice patch was the result of a continual flow of water emanating from the ground in that area.

Couple Injured. Eva Andrei, 24, 221-A Marshall Street and her husband, Natan, were both slightly injured last week when their car struck a utility pole on Riverside Drive West near Sycamore. Mrs. Andrei received contusions of the scalp, leg and ribs, while her husband sustained abrasions of both hands.

Mr. Andrei told police that he was teaching his wife how to drive and she had just turned from Sycamore onto Riverside when her foot accidentally hit the gas pedal instead of the brake. Their car shot ahead, striking the pole and damaging the entire front end.

CAN'T PARK ALL DAY

On Library. Balancing the parking interests of business people, shopkeepers, customers and residents is a job to make Solomon himself turn pale, as Borough Council found once again Tuesday night.

After about an hour of public hearing, Council unanimously passed (5-0, Martin Lombarda absent) the ordinance setting a two-hour parking limit on Library between Stockton and Hodge. As a companion, Council also passed the ordinance establishing 47 new 10-hour meters in the center of town: 15 in Park Place the rest in the library lot.

A mini-delegation representing tenants of 20 Nassau presented a petition with 93 signatures protesting the Library Place two-hour parking restriction. The street has been used for all-day parking.

"This leaves us no convenient economic parking space," declared Joan Wycoff, speaking for the group.

"There is adequate parking at reasonable rates all over town and it's not being used," retorted Council member Arthur Morgan and his colleague Robert Powell told Mrs. Wycoff "You want free parking in front of someone's home."

Library Place residents have protested all-day parkers. Some cars block driveways, and all keep the leaf-sweepers from access to leaves swept to the curb.

Parking is a scarce resource, Council member Barbara Sigmund reminded audience and Council. Even the business community is divided, she observed: some want all-day parking for employees, others want short-term parking for customers, many want both.

Mary Vuglen, owner of 20 Nassau, said the building was "one of the Borough's largest taxpayers ($35,000 a year) and you should have consideration for our tenants."

Use the Trinity Church lot, only half full most of the time, advised Mayor Robert W. Cawley. But speakers protested the 25¢-for-two-hour rate as too high for low-income workers. The 30¢-for-all-day rate at the dinky station was protested as too low. Mrs. Sigmund said it was kept low to encourage use of the dinky as valuable mass-transit. Commuters might otherwise burden West Windsor even more than at present, she remarked.

Your Sewer Bill. Council passed the bill separating sewer charges on tax bills. Property-owners will pay $3.20 per 1,000 cubic feet of water and will get credit on third and fourth-quarter tax bills for the hidden sewer charge in first and second quarter bills.

Responding to Robert Hasford, Township resident, Mayor Cawley said the Borough wants a joint Township-Borough site plan law, with safeguards for small property-owners and will start action on the ordinance in January.

He joined Mr. Hasford in support of an open-meetings act now before the legislature. Mrs. Sigmund observed there is usually no response from the public for anything, until an issue hangs on someone's door.

LARCENIES RAMPANT

Parked Cars, Coats Targets. If your car has a stereo tape deck, if you own an expensive coat or use the lockers at Dillon Gym—beware! Your chances of being ripped off are acute if this week's theft report is an accurate barometer.

"They're really stealing, aren't they!" commented Capt. Theodore Lewis, as he ticked off 20 such larcenies at his press conference Tuesday.

Among car thefts: cassette tape deck ($150) and 12 tapes ($70) from a car parked at the Ivy Club lot off Prospect, a vent window pried open; a $225 stereo tape deck from a car parked on University Place, the victim an East Windsor resident; a $100 tape deck, 40 tapes in a red vinyl case ($200) and a sleeping bag ($10) from a student's car parked in the Theological Seminary lot, a door on the passenger side pried open; and from a university student's car parked at the rear of 15 Dickinson: stereo tape radio set ($200) and $30 cassette adapter. A front vent window was forced.

Also, a tan suede coat from the front seat of an unlocked car parked in front of 137 Nassau Street belonging to a Province Line Road resident; the rear of 15 Dickinson again.

a $60 radio tape player from an unlocked panel truck of a university student; a second-hand tape player worth $15 and 15 tapes valued at $30 from a Clay Street lot, the victim a resident of the street; and a $35 FM converter removed from a car parked at the rear of the Cloister Inn, 65 Prospect Avenue, owned by a university student. A left side door had been pried.

Also, a pair of car stereo speakers valued at $25 from a car parked in the dining hall lot of the Graduate College—the car was unlocked—and in the most recent car theft reported at 9:21 Tuesday morning, a university student lost a suitcase, three men's suits and three folders of personal papers with a combined value of $275. A left rear window had been pried to enter his car parked in the Ivy Club lot.

More Coats Taken. Suede and leather coats continue to be a favorite item among thieves.

A suede coat valued at $55 containing a $10 pair of gloves in the pockets was removed from the dining hall at the Theological Seminary, the victim a resident of Library Place.

Two coats were taken from the front lobby of the Campus Club, a 3/4-length leather coat ($60) and a brown leather World War II air force jacket ($40). From the Colonial Club over the weekend, a blue ski jacket valued at $40 was taken, its owner a Patton Hall university student.

Between 12:30 and 3:30 Monday afternoon, a 3/4 length yellow leather jacket valued at $130 was stolen from the reception area of the YMCA office on Avalon Place. Police identified the owner as a Pennington resident.

The locker room at Dillon Gym proved to be a fertile area for thieves. One victim had his brown leather wallet containing $10 taken from his unlocked locker while he was showering.

Another university student lost $10 when his wallet was taken Saturday between 2 and 2:45 p.m. Again the locker was unlocked, police said.

Earlier in the week, a brown leather wallet ($15 cash) and a wristwatch belonging to a university student were removed from a locker and the next day a wallet with an undisclosed amount of money was taken. It was later found in a trash can in the locker room. Both lockers were unlocked.

Spelman Hall Theft. A university student last week reported the theft of $90 from a desk drawer in a room at Spelman Hall. Police said there were no signs of forced entry.

An employee of Firestone Library had $25 removed from her wallet that she had left in her coat hanging in her office. Police said the thief removed the money and then replaced the wallet. They have a suspect.

Two in the Township. Township police reported two larcenies last week.

Mrs. Linda Sullivan, 392 Mount Lucas Road, had her pocketbook containing $35 stolen and a check book. She told police the theft took place while she was working on one of the presses in the rear of Minute Press, Inc., Princeton shopping Center. She had left her pocketbook in the front of the shop.

The same evening, an anonymous caller telephoned, police said, to tell Mrs. Sullivan that he had found her license, American Express card and Acme checking card at a bus stop in New Brunswick and was mailing the items to her.

A student at John Witherspoon School placed his knapsack containing his books, hat and school papers on the school grounds Thursday and when he returned it was missing. The value: $10.

Ptl. David Funk investigated the theft, which took place between 2:35 and 5:08.

APPEARS IN LINE-UP

Lewdness Suspect Arrested. Hyette E. Briscoe 3d, 20, 134 Alexander Street, has been arrested and charged by Borough police with four counts of open lewdness for indecent exposure.

Ordered to appear in a police line-up at the Mercer County Court House last week, Briscoe was arrested by Det. Ronald Holliday after he was identified by one of the witnesses. He has been released in $2,000 bail pending a court appearance January 22.

Briscoe is alleged to have exposed himself at the Princeton Inn Dorm on November 10 and 11 and inside Holder Hall and Blair Hall, both on November 12.

WE WANT THE LOOP!

Petition Presented. "We want the Loop Road!" wasn't exactly the rallying cry when Shady Brook area residents opposed to construction of a pair of Terhune Road-Loop Road segments massed in Borough Hall last week to tell the Planning Board "No!" in resounding and reiterated terms.

But 16 households on nearby Overbrook—and that's 100 percent of the residents, and a Brnadrippe property-owner who sneaked in—want at least one of those segments built, and they have so petitioned the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

No one on Overbrook wants to be identified (except a SOMETHING old or new to sell? Try a Town Topics Classified Call 924-2200 today writer to "Mailbox," on page 22) The high temper, booing and hissing at the Planning Board meeting intimidated some half dozen proponents of the road who were present. They say they fear reprisal by residents of Dodds Lane Bertrand Drive et al, if they allow their names to be published.

The Township's 1975 capital budget contains a provision for construction of two Terhune segments: one extending from Snowden Lane to Bertrand Drive, the other picking up at the south end of an already-built fragment, and continuing to the Kingston Road.

The Overbrook petition asks only for the Snowden-Bertrand portion. Both are parts of the so-called Loop Road, originally designed to swing traffic around, instead of through, Princeton.

Overbrook residents say their street is a funnel for commuter cars and school-bound cyclists who live in the Dodds area. The Snowden-Bertrand link would ease this traffic, they say.

"The added traffic burden should be shared," a resident said. "None of us on Overbrook was consulted as that Shady Brook area was developed, but we're getting all their traffic. We've counted over 75 cyclists a day, going both ways. It's a narrow street, with no shoulders and no curbs."

meeting Monday night to object to a bike path up (and down) The Great Road. Committee introduced an ordinance appropriating $10,000 for land acquisition for such a path. In effect, the ordinance would authorize condemnation if the land can't be purchased through negotiation with property-owners.

James Love described a thick hedge he has cultivated over the years to deaden sound and sight of Great Road traffic. Presumably part, at least, of the hedge would have to be sacrificed to the path.

Objections were also raised by John G. Winant, who lives on The Great Road, and by William Barr, 127 Westerly Road. Committee noted the objections; however, formal public hearing will not be held until the annual year-end meeting of Committee scheduled for 5 p.m. on Friday, December 27.

BEAUTY SALON ENTERED

Register Is Ransacked. The Caprice Beauty Salon, 262 Alexander Street, was entered between 6 Friday night and 8:30 the next morning by a thief who ransacked the cash register and removed $2 and $18 in quarters. Nothing else was disturbed, police said.

Entry was gained by removing a 10 by 24-inch pane of glass from a rear door. Sgt. David Potts is investigating.

Borough police report five break-ins last week, including the apartment of an Olden Street resident who lost a $350 racoon fur coat, and a stereo tuner, turntable and pre-amp attachment with a combined value of $355. The apartment was entered between 6:30 and 7:45 Thursday evening through an unlocked rear door, police said. Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm and Ptl. David Alston investigated.

A Bayard Lane woman called police Friday evening to report that her portable color TV set had just been stolen while she was visiting a neighbor's house. She told police that she had walked out the front door leaving it open. "Evidently someone was watching her," commented Capt. Theodore Lewis.

There were two entries into first-floor rooms at Brown Hall on the Theological Seminary campus.

One student lost a Bible book valued at $50, taken from his desk by someone who entered an unlocked 18 by 12-inch window, police said, between 5 and 6:15 Saturday evening. A clock radio and typewriter were stolen from another student's room Friday evening between 6 and 7 p.m.

A Princeton University student reported Sunday that someone had entered her room in Pyne Hall and removed from atop her dresser her purse containing $10, a $20 silver bracelet, $30 pin and a jade pendant. Entry was through an unlocked window.

HUN NAMES TRUSTEE

Ralph H. Mather Elected. Ralph H. Mather, Board Chairman of The First National Bank of Princeton, has been elected to the Board of Trustees of The Hun School.

Dr. Paul R. Chesebro, Headmaster of Hun, said Mr. Mather's "long experience not only in finance but in community activities will contribute toward Hun's traditional objective of providing educational services to the community."

Mr. Mather is President and member of the Board of Trustees of the Princeton Public Library and a Director of the Princeton United Fund. He is also a Director of United Jersey Banks, and serves on the Governing Council of the American Bankers Association, and Executive Committee of the New Jersey Bankers Association. He attended Princeton public schools and was graduated from Rutgers University.

Correction

In an article last week about a zoning application for the continued multiple family use of property at 18 Madison Street, TOWN TOPICS reported that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Von Tobel, neighbors within 200 feet of the application, were represented by attorney William C. Baggitt. Although concerned about the application, the Von Tobels were not represented by any attorney.

BALLOONIST SUES N.J.
Over Landing Regulations. Robert Waligunda, president of Sky Promotions in Princeton, has ballooned his way into a head-on fight with the State of New Jersey and the Division of Aeronautics over the question of where free-flight vehicles, such as balloons, are legally allowed to land. The State will defend its position in a show cause hearing in Mercer County Superior Court this Thursday.

Mr. Waligunda has caused publicity ever since he infuriated many legislators and the Byrne administration by taking off from in front of the state house on July 23 to protest against the possibility of an income tax. After a summons against Mr. Waligunda for having violated two state laws, the incident was dismissed. In September, the Division of Aeronautics adopted an emergency regulation reportedly without prior notice or public hearing, requiring that balloons must take off and land only at a licensed airport, landing field or landing strip.

In their decree, they declared that uncontrolled balloon operations create an "imminent peril to the public health, safety or welfare."

Mr. Waligunda, a licensed balloon pilot who was the subject of a television special documenting his 1971 cross-country balloon flight, disagrees and has brought suit against the State and three of its officials in order to have the regulations declared null and void.

His attorney, Dennis O'Connor, has been seeking an injunction against enforcing the emergency regulation. "The regulation is so arbitrary and capricious that Waligunda could endanger his life and that of others by complying," Mr. O'Connor told Mercer County Superior Court Judge George Y. Schoch last week.

Show Cause. Judge Schoch has ordered the state to demonstrate in a show cause hearing what emergency, if any, existed to prompt the enactment of the regulations without public hearings. After all, argues Mr. Waligunda, "balloons have been around for 40-50 years without there ever having been a ballooning accident."

At the least, in the only recent legal ruling about balloons, a different Mercer County judge dismissed the earlier complaints about Mr. Waligunda because he said there were no state regulations governing the take off or landing of balloons. Hence, his unscheduled take-off and disappearance into the sky from State Street in July was not a violation.

Mr. Waligunda claims that the regulations are meant as "a conscious campaign of harassment against me." He calls them "an unconstitutional infringement on my right to make a living and on my right to fly balloons under federal law." He argues that the wind can sometimes make it impossible to land in a licensed area.

Assistant Attorney General Remo Croce, arguing the state's case, claims that the regulations are not so strict as to forbid balloonists from landing where necessary in the case of unfavorable winds or emergencies.

Mr. Croce said that prior to the September dismissal of the State's summonses against Mr. Waligunda, "we had always believed that previous law was sufficient." But, he continued, "as a result of the decision in Mercer County District Court, we concluded that there was a void in the law that made it appear that anyone could take off with impunity from anywhere in the State, including from Route 1."

Mr. Croce said that the state was concerned that someone could be killed in a ballooning accident, citing the high volatility of the propane gas used in the balloons. He has argued to Judge Schoch that Mr. Waligunda's allegations are "factual issues, and we have to accept the expertise of the division of aeronautics that there is an emergency."

EXHIBIT TO OPEN

Of Princeton Artist. A one-man show of ceramic sculpture by James Colavita, 910 Cherry Valley Road, will open Saturday night at the Flemington Studio of the Arts, 35 Mine Street, in Flemington. The show is entitled "Demons and Madonnas," drawing heavily upon the inspiration of mythology to create an aura of the baroque.

Mr. Colavita earned his bachelor's degree from Trenton State College and then studied ceramics privately with Ise Johnson and Bob Barnes. His work has been shown in Princeton galleries and in the N.J. State Museum, where a recent piece was chosen for the N.J. Artists Show.

Mr. Colavita has taught sculpture at the Mercer County Community College and is currently teaching sculpture and ceramics through the Princeton and Lawrenceville adult education programs.

The opening reception for the Flemington show is scheduled for Saturday evening from 7 to 11. The show will continue through January 25.

ETS Loses Farmland Assessment on 90 Acres; Plans to File Appeal on $471,000 Increase

Educational Testing Service intends to appeal a recent decision by the Mercer County Board of Taxation which denied the organization from further qualifying for reduced property tax rates under the 1964 Farmland Assessment Act.

ETS counsel John Kramer said that the appeal will be filed before December 15 with the State Board of Tax Appeal. No decision is expected for at least two years because of the present backlog of appeals.

In a decision handed down in early November, the county board rejected ETS's claim that 90 of the almost 400 acres on the Rosedale site are entitled to be assessed as farmland. The effect of this decision was to increase the total assessment on ETS by $471,100 - to a total of over $14.1 million. Each acre previously designated as farmland rose from $500 to $4000 in valuation, the same assessment as for other ETS acreage.

The attorney for the county board contended successfully that the primary purpose of ETS is educational testing and research, thereby making any farming income strictly incidental. ETS reported gross hay sales of $3,505 in 1972 and $3,732 in 1973.

No Hay in 1974. But 1974 hay sales slipped to zero, the ETS in-house newspaper "Examiner" reported in its November 21 issue. Mr. Kramer explained in the "Examiner" that the sod farmer formerly responsible for harvesting ETS hay failed to do so this year before bad weather set in.

But Mr. Kramer argued that the omission of 1974 sales was inconsequential to the county board's decision and that the board ignored the specific provisions of the farmland assessment law. Those provisions permit any land parcel of five acres or more which is "actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use" to qualify for lower assessments. "Actively devoted" is defined under the law, Mr. Kramer says, as meaning that the land in question yields gross annual sales of five dollars per acre, or over $500 per parcel, in agricultural or horticultural products.

Mr. Kramer thus claimed that ETS is entitled to the lower assessment, because of "either past experience or future expectation" of farm sales. In a telephone interview, he said that the board "made its decision casually, without handing down guidelines", regarding the legal basis of their ruling.

Prospects Favorable. Mr. Kramer believes "chances are reasonably good" that ETS will eventually win its appeal. The state board will conduct a "de novo" hearing, which requires full legal testimony, rather than a simple review of the lower tax board's ruling. If ETS wins the appeal, it intends also to appeal an earlier county board ruling limiting ETS to only 90 of the 160 acres of farmland designation it originally claimed.

Mr. Kramer's optimism is based on his interpretation that the farmland act was designed to preserve undeveloped land by granting owners of farmland a tax break. He thus believes that ETS is fulfilling both the intent and letter of the law by claiming 160 acres as farmland. He does suggest, that, in light of world food shortages, the law would be better if changed to disqualify all farmland not used for food production.

Total Exemption? In another part of the same article, the "Examiner" suggest that "someday ETS will choose to test the basic exemption", since it believes that "as a non-profit educational organization it should be exempt from all state and federal income taxes except on unrelated business income." But "as a corporate good citizen, availing itself of some community services, ETS should pay some taxes", the article reported.

New Jersey Residents' Faith in Ford Drops Steadily as Recession Deepens, Poll Shows

New Jerseyans' discontent with the way Gerald Ford has handled the presidency has risen sharply since September.

The results of the latest New Jersey Poll, conducted by the Eagleton Institute of Rutgers University, show that 36 percent rate Ford's overall performance as President "excellent" or "good" while a majority—54 percent—term his performance "only fair" or "poor." The remaining 10 percent offered no opinion.

In September Ford received ratings of "excellent" or "good" from 38 percent while 42 percent said his performance was "only fair" or "poor."

New Jerseyans have an even more negative view of the job the Congress has done over the last year. Only 22 percent of those polled give Congress positive ratings of "excellent" or "good," while 76 percent came down on the negative side with ratings of "only fair" or "poor."

New Jersey Poll Director Dr. Stephen A. Salmore pointed out that "Ford's decline in popularity can be attributed to the public's reaction to the nation's worsening economy." The Poll found that by a 48-31 margin, people disapprove of the way President Ford has been handling the economy. These disapproving of Ford's economic policies were overwhelmingly critical of the overall job he was doing as President. Among this group, "fair" and "poor" ratings outnumbered "excellent" and "good" ratings by almost five to one—77 percent to 17 percent.

The New Jersey POLL

The latest Poll figures are a reversal from the September results which showed that Ford's handling of the economy was approved by a 36-27 margin.

"Ford's nomination of Nelson Rockefeller to be Vice President and the ensuing controversy have also contributed to his declining job rating," Salmore said. Among those who favor Rockefeller's confirmation, Ford receives more positive ratings than negative ones—47 percent "excellent" or "good" to 44 percent "only fair" or "poor." Negative ratings outnumber positive ones by three to one—69 to 23—among those who oppose Rockefeller's nomination.

The New Jersey Poll reported last week that Rockefeller's confirmation as Vice President is favored by a narrow 47 percent to 44 percent margin here in New Jersey.

"Ford continues to get good marks for the way he has been conducting the nation's foreign policy," Salmore reported. The latest Poll, conducted before Ford's trip to the Far East, shows that by 48-25 those surveyed approved of the way he is handling foreign affairs. In September 44 percent approved and 19 percent disapproved.

"These latest Poll findings," Salmore explained, "indicate that Ford's Presidency is dividing New Jerseyans along partisan lines. In September, the Democrats gave Ford more negative ratings than positive ones by a 52-32 margin. This margin is now 63-28. On the other hand, positive ratings among Republicans outnumber negative ones now by 60-32, up from 51-30 in September.

"Since Democrats outnumber Republicans by more than two to one in New Jersey this trend alone would explain Ford's decline in popularity," Salmore said. "However, Ford's job rating is falling even among Independents. By 55-35, Independents are critical of the President while in September they were evenly divided—39 percent positive and 40 percent negative."

The principal figures in percentages:

	E&G	F&P	DK
Total	36	54	10
Democrats	28	63	9
Independent	35	55	10
Republican	60	32	8

Conservative	38	52	10
18-29	36	57	6
30-49	37	53	9
50+	34	53	13

The New Jersey Poll was conducted by telephone from the Eagleton Institute of Politics in New Brunswick between Nov. 11 and 17. A scientifically selected random sample of 1005 New Jersey residents 16 years of age or older were interviewed.

Human Relations in Schools Require More Than Lip Service, Superintendent McPherson Tells YW Racial Justice Committee

"It's a chilling feeling I have—in this past year, people have relaxed about human relations problems: they have other concerns, like inflation. Lip service, but where is the commitment?"

Philip E. McPherson, superintendent of Princeton schools, talked about human relations programs in the schools at a luncheon meeting Thursday sponsored by the YWCA's committee for Racial Justice.

After sketching his views on human relations and the various programs in the schools, Dr. McPherson asked the audience to watch school board agendas and attend meetings during this pre-budget time.

"Start an education 'Common Cause,'" he suggested, pointing out that in the inevitable budget cuts, "last hired is first fired, and that can mean a lot of black staff."

Besides the concerns of black students and their parents, the superintendent said, Princeton schools are concerned about other aspects of "human relations: sexism, economic discrimination and individual liberties."

Open Records Favored. Opening of student records, under the new Federal statute, is "a revolution long in coming, and I'm glad it's here," Dr. McPherson said. Princeton's schools intend to limit a student's record to whatever is required by law and whatever is necessary to plan and implement the education of that student.

"Information in these records will be 'Maximally objective and minimally subjective,'" he promised. He added that Princeton, some years ago, had considered the reforms in student record availability that are now mandated under law, but had held back.

"Now we've got Buckley running interference for us (Senator James Buckley, sponsor of the Federal law) and it makes you wonder whether you should start a revolution, or wait for it. Princeton is usually out ahead in its thinking, as a community."

Five Long Year's Ago. Turning to sexism, the superintendent smilingly held up a teacher recruitment brochure published about five years ago for which the Princeton school system won a national prize. He drew audience laughter and hoots of scorn when he read from the brochure:

"Are you a female elementary school teacher searching for more effective ways to reach children...? Are you a male elementary school teacher with career goals in administration?"

It was not until several years after publication of the brochure, Dr. McPherson acknowledged, that school officials saw the sexist implications of those questions.

Substitution of "Parents" morning for the traditional Election Day "Fathers" morning...girls in Industrial Education and boys in Home Ec...elimination of such course designations as "Boys' Chef Class" have been incorporated into the school cycle, he said.

When a member of the audience asked how children can be formally taught to be aware of problems of race, sex and economic difference, the superintendent described a boy-girl tag football game in which a baffled teacher was trying to teach the girls rules the boys already knew, and at the same time coping with teams composed of both black and white students.

Help for All. "Every time you get black and white kids, and boys and girls in a similar situation, you can focus on helping everybody cope with the experience," he said.

"You can overdo the groupie thing," he remarked, "and I'm not saying you should spend an hour discussing whether to take ketchup on a class outing, but class planning like that, and everyday things like the football game are more important than a formal class in Human Relations Problems."

"I'm hung up on economic discrimination," Dr. McPherson told the audience. He was referring to fees charged for various student activities. Today, football players do not have to buy their shoes—the school system provides them—and if an English class is studying "Great Films," the school buys the tickets (but if the teachers' association to get a school board-teacher dialogue going." Dr. McPherson said, and he referred to an 11-point "Staff Evaluation and Development" document used to point out to teachers the need to be unbiased, sensitive and responsive to all kinds of students.

Throughout, the teacher is referred to as "he."

In each elementary school, the black population is about eight percent, so that black youngsters find themselves a very small minority in the school. However, when all elementary school children come together at the district's one Middle School, black children encounter other black children and they are no longer so alone.

Black Minority. "Black kids carry quite a burden in the Princeton system because of the way we assign students to keep an integrated district," Dr. McPherson said.

"By Middle School age, a lot of whites have a different feeling about blacks—a neutral feeling, if nothing else—so there's none of the 'Who are THEY?' kind of thing," he remarked.

"But I do wonder about kids of Italian descent, a lot of whom come into our schools right from Italy, not knowing much English and maybe other kids do say about them, 'Who are THEY?'"

From the late 1960's, the superintendent reminded the audience, the schools have been recruiting black staff and developing a curriculum of black studies. The recommendation of the Human Relations committee for an on-going council hasn't been followed, the superintendent said, because school officials weren't quite clear what role it should have.

TIGERS TOP VILLANOVA
On Strong First Half. Ability to dominate Villanova in the closing minutes of the first half at the Palestra Tuesday night paved the way to a 79-70 victory for Princeton's basketball team. The Tigers had trouble in the final 20 minutes, however, their 48-34 lead at the intermission dwindling to no more than three points (60-57) before they regained control of the action.

The teams traded baskets evenly during the first 12 minutes of the opening half but with seven minutes left, the Tigers moved out to a 26-19 lead. Villanova closed to 26-24, only to see the Orange and Black hit for 16 points in the next five minutes while limiting the opposition to a pair of free throws.

The Wildcats were taking the bad shot and missing, in contrast to Princeton's more deliberate attack, which paid off with frequent layups when the home team defense left a man open. The Orange and Black shot a fine 59% for the round while Villanova could do no better than 42.

Hauptfuhrer, whose game average was 16, bettered that by two on 8-for-13 shooting plus a pair of free throws. Steurer added 14, including a perfect 6-for-6 from the foul line.

As it had against Notre Dame at South Bend, the Orange and Black had difficulty working against an all-court press in the second half. Adding to its problems was a frigid spell at the foul line which saw four players all miss the first free throw on one-and-one opportunities.

Villanova stayed within five points during most of the final stages of the contest, but eventually Steurer converted a pair of foul shots and Armond Hill added a basket in the last ten seconds. Hauptfuhrer, who was in foul trouble during most of the last period, could add but two points to his 18. Steurer followed with 19, Hill had 16 and sophomore Mark Hartley 12.

The victory raised Princeton's record to 3 and 1. It also gave the Tigers a rarity in their basketball history: back-to-back victories over Villanova, which had won 18 of the 30 games between the two teams prior to this week.

SKATERS LOSE TO PENN
Beaten Here, 4-3. A Pennsylvania hockey team that had won only once in four starts ran up a 4-0 lead on Princeton in the first two periods then held off a Tiger rally Tuesday night in Baker Rink to win, 4-3. The outcome left major doubts that the anticipated renaissance of the sport here would make much headway in the weeks ahead, since the Quakers are not ranked among the better teams in the east.

A pair of goals in just over a minute as the clock was beginning to run out in the first period got the visitors away to a fast start. It was late in the second round (17:16 and then 19:12) that they tallied two more to put the game beyond Princeton's reach.

Mark Stuckey put the home team on the board at 3:09 of the final period, but with less than a minute to go, Penn still was in front by 4-1. At 19:04, sophomore Kris Kollevol scored and Stuckey added a second goal with just 24 seconds left.

Princeton's inability to press an attack in the first two periods cost it the ball game, the Tigers putting just 15 shots on goal during that time. They were credited with 22 in the final 20 minutes, but fell short of sending the game into overtime. Sophomore Mike O'Leary, in the Princeton cage, made 24 saves and could have used more help on the four shots that got by him.

Loop Road Favored.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
I can appreciate the feelings of the residents on Bertrand Drive and Dodds Lane and understand why they do not want the additional traffic that the loop road would bring to their quiet streets. Overbrook Drive was once quiet too but, over the years, it has become the "unofficial loop road" connecting Snowden Lane with Route 27.
We are inundated with speeding cars, trucks, motorcycles—many speeding down the hill and around the curve to Shadybrook, Dodds Lane and Bertrand Drive. The traffic is there and will continue whether or not the loop road is built.

It is unreasonable for the people on Bertrand and Dodds to expect the people on Overbrook to bear the entire burden of the conditions they so vociferously condemn. It would be ideal if no one had to suffer traffic noise, pollution and safety hazards.
Unfortunately, keeping it from one area to compound its effects on another is not a solution. With the loop road, we can at least share the meter menace.

Referendum Urged.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
The conduct of the chairman of the Regional Planning Board at last Tuesday night's meeting was most inappropriate and he should be made to go to his room and think about it.
During the presentation of protests of the proposed loop road, he almost constantly whispered behind his hand to the man on his left and then the man on his right. By his demeanor and body English it was obvious that he neither heard, nor cared to hear what was being said.

In his own opening remarks he pointed out the proposed loop road on a map and said, "Here is where the road will go." Will go? Has he already made up his mind? If so, why? Whose interest does he serve?
The Planning Board was designed to serve all of the people and all of the people of Princeton both in the Borough and the Township will be affected by it. It seems obvious that the only way the will of the people will be served is to submit the matter to a referendum, and soon!

Tokamak Is Needed.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
In reply to the open letter to the Board of Trustees of Princeton University by Mary E. Gray opposing the proposed Tokamak fusion device, I must speak out in its defense.
I cannot, in good conscience, stand idly by and see Tokamak suffer the fate of every needed project conceived of in the past 20 years, including Toek's Island dam in my area. Not when there supposedly is an energy crisis and we need new energy sources to insure self-sufficiency for our nation.

I have resided in Princeton for most of my 35 years, in the shadow of nuclear research reactors and the shellarator, and I never thought anything about it. Quite the contrary I was proud then and I would be extremely pleased if I could hear that Tokamak has achieved a controlled fusion reaction here in Princeton.
Moreover, if Mr. Friemana would permit it, and if I could, I would volunteer to take my walks on top of Tokamak and participate in the burial of that one gram of tritium to show that there is nothing to fear. All those who know me know that my nerves are not those of iron. In fact, if they even allowed this, and it is unlikely I could borrow that tritium for a week or so before they buried it.

In conclusion, I say this: I can see and understand that Ms. Gray is concerned about Tokamak. But just once, let there not be a controversy over this device. Let it be built, and let it produce the needed power that will help and change the world, hopefully for the better, and let it be built here.

End Wednesday Program.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
The Wednesday Program in the school system has been with us for some years now, and it is time again to consider whether its positive aspects justify the disruptive effects of the compressed Wednesday morning classes and the shortened teaching hours.
Recently, I have walked around the schools on a Wednesday afternoon. It was very obvious that the teacher participation in the program was small and that many of the activities were not closely related to teacher professional development. Students, of course, are not involved at all.
In short, the program has ceased to be attractive and Wednesday has become an afternoon off for all but a small minority. The moral is, I suggest, not that the teaching staff is avoiding necessary work but that the activities are not sufficiently valued for their effect in aiding the teaching process.
Since its inception the Wednesday Program has undergone several changes. It has been promoted by able and enthusiastic people and if it has failed it is not for lack of trying.
It is now time, I believe, to return to a Wednesday of complete classes. There is, of course, a need for teachers to meet together but surely this can be done in the context of a full week as it is in other school systems.

The concept of innovation has considerable value and we should certainly continue to encourage the promoters of new ideas in education. The Wednesday program has however passed from innovation to establishment, one in which the continued low level of activity shows it is not worth maintaining. The school administration should now recognize this and seek other ways of improving the teaching environment in our schools.

Income, Not Property Tax.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
The League of Women Voters of the Princeton Area commends Mayors Bleiman and Cawley of Princeton Township and Borough for their recent letter to Governor Byrne urging him to reopen the income tax proposal.

As the Mayors point out, the choice is not between an income tax and no new taxes. The choice is between a fair and equitable plan to meet the Court mandate and to close the $500 million budget gap and an irresponsible plan such as those being considered now.

The League strenuously opposes the property tax and any of the combinations being considered as being highly regressive. Our state already ranks highest in the use of the property tax. The result is a crushing burden on the poor and moderate income family and on those retired and on fixed incomes. In these days of economic uncertainty, even the affluent worker can lose his job or be disabled. But he will continue to be taxed on what he owns, not on what he earns.

The statewide property tax presents a serious problem to local officials. It amounts to a raid on the major tax base available to them and severely undermines their ability to provide necessary local services.

Further, if the budget gap is not closed, the state will have to cut back radically on state aid to local and county government. This would mean that local officials would have to raise local property taxes sharply to make up the difference or to cut services drastically.

The League urges the Legislature not to be stampeded by the calendar into enacting a tax plan that is irresponsible. The citizens of this state will have to live with it for a long time to come. We are committed to an income tax as the only equitable way of providing the revenue the state needs.

Cost Accounting Sought.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
In the public interest would you please publish a full list of the administrative, supervisory and advisory positions in the Princeton Public School system, the salaries for each as well as for the assistants and clerks attached to each. Would you include maintenance costs for all such positions (lighting, heating, office equipment and supplies, mailing and telephone costs, cleaning, painting and remodeling). Also, would you include the cost of designing, printing and distributing newsletters, calendars and those pretentious job-application forms.

Finally, would you publish the cost of sabbatical leaves, expense-paid trips, free tuition for children of non-resident school employees.

I suggest that these costs be averaged over the past three years. Local taxpayers as well as New Jersey citizens, in general, may be interested in a frank presentation of the cost of maintaining "services," many of which, in my opinion, contribute virtually nothing toward effective teaching and learning.

This request is not a suggestion for hiring an outside accounting firm, management consulting service, or part-time employees for fact-gathering. Public employees who spend our money should have these figures readily at hand.

Senator's Actions Questioned.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
I find the present flap about Senatorial courtesy and Senator Anne Martindell to be most interesting.

In denying that she is invoking this detestable procedure to block the appointments of qualified candidates for high state positions, Senator Martindell tended off a reporter's question by saying: "You'll have to see Joe Merlino." Senator Martindell further points to the fact that she campaigned against senatorial courtesy in 1973.

Isn't it ironic that the person she defeated—State Senator William Schluter—was the leader in the fight against this practice.

But Schluter spoke with action, not words. He gathered several of his Senate colleagues to form a bloc in voting against the Senate rules in 1972 and in 1973 because they did not outlaw the abuses of senatorial courtesy.

He introduced a constitutional amendment to require that the "60-day rule" be imposed on gubernatorial appointments, which amendment would effectively eliminate senatorial courtesy.

If Senator Martindell is really that interested in doing away with senatorial courtesy, why doesn't she follow the example of her predecessor, Bill Schluter.

News Of The CHURCHES

80 Presbyterians Share Meatless Meals; Contribute $300 to World Hunger Fund

REPLACE STEEPLE?
Hopewell Church Must Decide. Immediately following Sunday's service, members of the Calvary Baptist Church in Hopewell will be asked to vote either to replace the old steeple with a new prefabricated aluminum steeple or to remove the old one to roof level and simply close in the roof.

The steeple has been leaning toward the rear of the church for years. Contractors and engineers believe that the lean will gradually increase because of a sagging truss support spanning the church ceiling. Although there is no immediate danger of the steeple falling, they recommend that the problem be corrected at the same time that the church roof is replaced.

The cost of removing the old steeple and replacing it with a 24-foot aluminum steeple would be approximately $7,700. Removal of the old structure and closing in the roof would cost approximately $2,850.

About 80 members of the Nassau Presbyterian Church tried a novel approach to helping relieve world hunger last Sunday evening by enjoying a "sharing meal" of meatless home-cooking. And the idea seemed to work, producing over $300 in contributions to the World Hunger Fund and, even better, 30 excellent meatless recipes to be distributed among the congregation.

Everyone who came was asked to bring an economical meatless dish or salad, with enough extra to enable everyone else at the dinner to sample the dish. People were also asked to bring a recipe card, including the cost and nutritional value of the dish, and also their own plates and silverware. The church provided no ovens, hot plates, paper plates or silverware, as a lesson to all in conservation and economizing.

The meal's organizer, Mrs. James M. McPherson, 15 Randall Road, dispelled the seeming contradiction of the meal by explaining, "We weren't eating for famine." Instead, she said the meal was intended to familiarize and enthruse people with the possibilities and fun of meatless cooking and create a handy list of recipes.

Mrs. McPherson said that the dishes were all very good, including many delicious soybean recipes and even an "Esau's dish of lentils" (from the Biblical story, as interpreted by two former missionaries). The dishes were so good, in fact, that she admitted, "I think we all overate."

But nevertheless people contributed savings, or made separate gifts, of more than $300 to relieve hunger. This amount would feed one child for nearly a full year, according to the Reverend James Whittemore's speech on Thanksgiving to the Princeton community.

After the meal, the group held a discussion with several outside guests on the problem of world hunger and what concerned Christians can do about it. The guests included the Rev. William Duval, the Rev. William Forbes, and the Rev. Wallace Aliston Jr.

Mrs. Louise Jones, 47, of Camp Meeting Avenue, Skillman, died December 4 in Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Chatham, Va., Mrs. Jones lived in the Skillman area for 30 years and was a member of the Mount Zion AME Church.

She is survived by her husband, Norman Jones; five sons, Carl, James, and Robert, all of Skillman, Norman of New Brunswick and Gene of Camp LeJune, N.C.; four daughters, Mrs. Linda Groones of Lawrenceville and Lucy, Sylvia and Charlen, all at home; three sisters, Mrs. Nora Adams and Mrs. Patsy Robinson, both of Chatham, Va., and Miss Cora L. Barksdale of Trenton; three brothers, Walter, Louis and Robert Barksdale, all of Trenton; and three grandchildren.

The service was held in Trenton, with burial in Stoutsberg Cemetery.

Center. Prior to that, Mr. Newcombe had worked for the Walker-Gordon Laboratories.

Two sisters, Mrs. Elva Kelsall of Penns Neck and Mrs. Lois Gauntt of Whiting, survive.

The service will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Cole Funeral Home in Cranbury, the Rev. Donald L. Snyder, pastor of Princeton Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Toledo, Ohio. Contributions may be made to the United Fund of Princeton.

Susan M. Sickafosse, 17-month-old infant, of 86 Claremont Road, Franklin Park, died suddenly on December 6.

She is survived by her parents, Keith and Anne R. Sickafosse; a sister, Patricia Ann, and a brother, John T.; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leland F. Reilly, Wagner, Okla.; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip D. Sickafosse, Phoenix, Ariz.

An angel mass was held in St. Paul's Church. Burial was in Atlantic-View Cemetery, Manasquan, under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Bus Stops Here
Sharp blue and white LOOP BUS stop signs have been tied to various telephone poles and trees around town reminding the 841 riders of the Loop Bus plus riders who haven't ridden the Loop Buses yet, that The Bus Stops here.

Right now, it's the same two Suburban Transit buses. But a little 19-to-23-passenger Flexette coach pulled into town Monday for PUC inspection. If it passes, it will be considered for purchase as Princeton's Loop Bus. Assuming Federal funding OK, of course. The Flexette costs $17,500 ($20,000 with air-conditioning) and is a couple of feet longer than a Cadillac.

The 841 riders were aboard last week. Official figures show 846 for the week ending November 22 and 694 for the four-day Thanksgiving week.

Cover for the new bus schedule was designed by Paul and Mary Riffs, TV puppeteers who live in Princeton, from a design suggested by 10-year-old Amity Eills. Her mother is the Loop Bus promotion lady.

Coupling these figures with earlier estimates for new roofing and paint on the parsonage of $28,500, the total renovation costs with a new steeple would be $36,200 compared with $31,350 without a steeple.

The Stewardship Commission of the church also points out that the replacement steeple would not be large enough to house the bell, which could be alternatively mounted in the side yard or somewhere inside the church.

Drawings will be made available to members before the vote.

Brockway, Craig Hendrix, David and Kevin Lewellen, Thomas Mann, Jo Anna and James McKinney, Dawn and Heather McNally, Don Portwood and the Rev. Kenneth S. Dannenhauer.

Robert L. Cope will preach on the "The X-Factor in Christmas" this Sunday at the Unitarian Church of Princeton at 10.

LOSE A DOG?

A large, long haired mixed breed of undetermined sex (golden retriever color collie type face) has been visiting our house on Dutchtown Zion Rd., Montgomery Twp., for about a week now. It has no collar, but has been obviously well cared for. Very gentle and sweet tempered. If it's yours, or you know whose dog it might be, please call 359 4054.

where...

but at country antiques

can you find

Dollhouse furniture. We finally succumbed and bought a new line of hand crafted furniture finding it well nigh impossible to discover old. Disliking a boutique atmosphere which is inconsistent with antiques, we feel nevertheless that dollhouses must be furnished and dislike disappointing our young customers. Therefore it's a matter of expediency.

Trundle beds, dry sinks, table chairs, lavatories, all simple early American pieces made with loving dexterity.

Ask Us! Have accumulated so many oddities we find it impossible to display and advertise all. Have things like a pump, a French whisk for omelets, a Mexican scarf, rose point lace collars and cuffs, an 1880 wedding dress, a dainty bonnet such as worn by ladies in primitive paintings, garden furniture, a spinet desk, a set of 4 arrowback chairs, one super step down Windsor, 18th century, a dropleaf table and a farm table. That's only part.

Just acquired some beautiful baby things, super quality.

An attractive, well kept rancher, which will reduce housekeeping to a minimum. There are 6 bright rooms, the living room has a fireplace, there is a separate dining room, and the kitchen features both cabinet space galore and a generous eating area.

The sleeping area (three bedrooms and two baths) is quietly isolated from living activities, the master area is again separate and has its private bath. Both baths are complete with the master bath having a spacious shower area.

The heated garage easily stores two full sized cars and has additional space for hobbies. The lot abounds with mature plantings and trees. This excellent offering is immediately available and priced most realistically at $45,000.

Christmas Shopping for a Man? These Gift Suggestions May Help

The first week of December can be counted on for a flurry of Christmas activity. There is the N.J.N.P.I. Christmas in Princeton house tour, bazaars in all the surrounding towns, Christmas concerts, final rehearsals for the Princeton Regional Ballet Company's performance of "The Nutcracker," and many visits to Santa.

The tempo of Christmas shopping has been picking up also, and this week we looked at gifts for that perennially hard-to-buy-for male. Those great London Fog coats are at Harry Ballot, Nassau Street, and this year there is a single-breasted dark blue double-knit version. It is a handsome dress raincoat or topcoat, and comes with or without a zip-out lining, $85 and $100.

We also liked the stylish double-breasted and belted natural London Fog raincoat, $80 and it is pile lined. There are ladies London Fog raincoats too, and we can see why many men would find this a convenient place to buy their wives a gift.

Many men favor 100 percent cotton shirts and so does Harry Ballot. There are plaid sportshirts from Switzerland, red or green pinwale corduroy sportshirts with a pocket on the sleeve, and Duofold turtle necks in a variety of red and navy or white and navy stripes, $12.50 to $22.50.

Throughout all the stores we have noted this is a year for sweaters and the men are no exception. At The English Shop, also on Nassau Street, there is a wall filled with crewnecks, v-neck cardigans, and lots of sweater vests -- all very useful if you are living with a lowered thermostat, approximately $15 to $22.

Sportshirts can also keep you warm, especially when layered over a turtleneck. Always a favorite are the Scottish Viyella and Lochlana shirts in plaids, tattersalls and even some paisleys. We also liked the Pendleton all wool sportshirts and Woolrich's chamois or green back-packing shirt, $17 to $34.50.

For "Partly Sunny" Days. Still speaking of shirts, a dress shirt (whether solid, striped or tattersall) teamed with a tie is always a well-received gift. Another gift you can't go wrong on is a Totes self-folding umbrella for those days when the weatherman says "partly sunny," 14.95, and it has a lifetime guarantee.

The English Shop is very pleased (and well stocked) with its two single breasted traditional navy blazers. One is a wool flannel while the other is a wool and dacron basketweave, perfect for men who prefer a lighter weight for year-round wear, both $100.

imaginable brand, from both here and the continent. As a starter there are Levis, bells, straight legs, and corduroys from about $10. In addition, we saw velvets and the ultimate jeans -- Sicilly ones from France, $34.

We also liked the orange suede zip-front battle jacket,

Maintaining health is not an art, but there are rules. First of all, the intelligent person today follows the advice of his physician. He buys the products prescribed by his doctor, realizing that his supervision and recommendations are for the individuals best interests. The consumer reads labels on products, he remembers that the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act requires manufacturers to tell what the contents of any product are, and what it will do, as well as how to use it, when to take it, and when not to take it.

For all your vitamin needs speak to the experts at FORER PHARMACY, 160 Witherspoon. At Forer's we take the time to answer questions you may have regarding a medicine for you or your family. We will explain the doctors directions and point out things to do, or not to do, while using the medications--this is our own personal service to all our customers. Phone 921-7287.

$70; and the many shirts including rugby ones, Greek sailor tops, western styles and a fashion one sponsoring 20th Century Fox.

Handmade in Leather. The leather clothing from The Black Sheep on Witherspoon Street is not only all hand-made but also is hand washable which with the expense of cleaning leather is a great asset.

On display are jackets, pants and vests, any of which can be custom-made to your measurements in just a few weeks. A gift certificate to be measured would certainly be a generous stocking gift. Jackets begin at about $100.

There is a huge belt selection, all hand saddle-stitched and with handsome brass buckles. Because they are all one size the holes can be placed wherever you wish, $11 to $20. We also liked the leather cowhide ties, $12; a blue suede travel kit, $8.95; and the deerskin moccasins with a warm shearling lining, $20 and there are women's sizes too.

Across the street at Princeton Clothing, we found more background. All the robes are v-neck and crewneck sweaters in a wrap style and the price with the look of shetland ex- range is $28 to $37.50. cept they can be tossed in the washer and dryer. Our favorite was a handsome heavy patterned turtleneck by shirt with a mini flower design McGregor (also machine or sportshirts printed with washable) in an off white, a horseshoes, frogs or tennis soft yellow or a muted blue, racks. We also thought the yellow ski sweater with brown and green shoulder stripes was quite handsome, $25, and that a gift containing a multi-colored tank top or boxer shorts would brighten many a dark winter morning, $4.

Next door we visited one of our favorite men's stores, John David Ltd., which not only has a gorgeous and extensive pipe collection, but also smells wonderful. The pipes which carry such names as Ben Wade, Savenelli, Conroy, G.B.H., Dunhill and others range in price from $4.95 to a $750 Briar pipe hand-carved by Preben Holm of Denmark.

Two other popular shirts are the permanent press denim ones so loved by the youngsters and gingham checks in brown, maroon or blue, $9 to about $16. A nice old-fashioned gift is a warm flannel nightgown which comes in a navy or Christmas red, $9, while the perfect gift for Dad might be knit driving gloves with a vinyl palm which won't shrink if it gets damp, $4

Colorful Cover-ups. The bathrobe situation seemed quite well covered by Jack's Custom Shop at the Montgomery Shopping Center. Leading off was a plush kimono robe in at least seven colors. It comes with two belt loops on each side so any man whether he is 5'8" or 6'8" can wear it.

We also admired the heavy terrycloth robes and the beautiful Pierre Cardin prints. There are stripes, dots and even a small mushroom print on a brown or navy

Briar is probably the most popular of all pipes, because the wood gives a good quality cool dry smoke and it is not easily broken. In addition, we admired the intricately carved meerschaum pipes and the many free form ones.

John David also has cigars and for Christmas he has made up a special sampler of 14 different high-quality cigars, $10. Another cigar smoker's gift is a new humidifier; and these come in cork-lined leather boxes, beautifully polished wooden ones or a new contemporary clear and smoked lucite box, $32.50 to $80.

Naturally there are lots of other smoking accessories, but we were most impressed with the wonderfully smooth leather attache cases and backgammon sets. A brown suede overnight case is $70; the slimmest portfolio costs $47.50; and a masculine backgammon board all in tan and brown is $45.

British Sweaters. Once again Varsity Sport on Nassau Street has a supply of the Peter Storm sweaters. Made in Britain with an unbleached natural wool that is water repellent, these excellent outdoor sweaters come in a ribbed or popcorn stitch, navy or natural, $38 - $42.

Color remains the word in the ski world with even the men's parkas coming through in fashionable colors and the ski pants featuring bright racing stripes, by Bogner, Head, Roffe and Gerry for down-filled parkas. However, the brightest accent has to be the nylon windshirts by Skyr which come in checks, florals and hot solids, $11 and $13.

Over the past year Varsity's shoe department has been greatly expanded, and every imaginable sneaker by Addidas, Converse, Tiger, Nike and Puma seems to be here. A most interesting shoe is Bata's new canvas sneaker with a polyurethane sole that just doesn't wear out. This just may be an answer to sneakers that wear through after three months on a paddle tennis court. So far only the men's shoe is here, but a ladies' model is coming, $14.95.

For paddle or cool weather tennis this year's red-hot item is a warm-up suit, and we were especially interested in the Addidas ones which are sold by your height, in red, blue or green with a white stripe, $41. Tennis enthusiasts will also be happy to hear that Dunlap's Maxply racket, the most popular tournament model, is once again back in stock, unstrung $32.95.

Over in the Princeton Shopping Center, Jack Petrone of Center Sports has stocked some excellent wooden games for Christmas. We were unfamiliar but greatly impressed with an old-time game called Carom. It is a large wooden square with markings on both sides and enough pieces and directions for approximately 100 different games, quite a bargain for $10.50.

We also saw Nok-Hockey, Skittles and table soccer, $8.95 to $33.95. Then for a bigger gift there are three different fold and roll pingpong tables, $79.95 and up depending upon the thickness of the top, and a regulation size basketball setup for winter practice, about $90.

By Duofold we liked the knit sportshirts in a muted blue or cranberry, $22, and the two-layer long underwear for the whole family whether they be planning a bike trip or skiing. Although the underwear is mainly white, the women can choose between a butterfly

Super Gifts for a Super Man

If formality suits him, Harry Ballot has a pure cashmere topcoat in black but the camel hair one can be ordered $150.

At the English Shop you'll find an authentic fish fisherman's knit sweater—one of those items that grows more comfortable with the years $57.50.

The softest deerskin travel slippers with their own case are at the Black Sheep, $13.50. They also come with a larger case that doubles as a toiletries kit, $21.

Varsity Sport Shop is carrying the Scott ski boot that just has to ease that walk to the slopes, as it is half the weight of conventional boots, $185.

Not necessarily for grandfather is Viking Furniture's chrome black and wooden grandfather clock complete with Seth Thomas chimes that ring on the quarter hour, $600.

And finally, let him savor the thought of easier summer gardening by giving cordless electric grass shears or shrub trimmers, under $20 at Obal Garden Mart.

print or a solid powder blue, $7.50 to $8.50 a piece.

Other Christmas suggestions from here are the NFL and NHL team plaques with an ice skate or helmet set on a wooden plaque, $10.95; can of squash balls, $2.50; a digital pedometer for your husband the jogger, $13.50; or a Swiss army knife, $4.95 to $28.95.

Bicycles and Accessories. Although quality bikes may cost a little more initially, in the long run safer performance and fewer repairs make them well worth the investment. Tiger Auto, Witherspoon Street, assembles all its bikes and guarantees them. Three-speed models start at about $70 with the famous Raleigh bikes a bit higher.

And, of course there are lots of accessories such as an excellent pump with its own gauge up to 140 pounds, $13.99.

instant seal 'n air for unexpected flats (aren't they all), $2.99; lots of locks; and the Cannondale products which include the popular kangaroo bags and the fascinating Bugger that trails behind your bike carrying tents, supplies or even two children, approximately $7 to $65.

For children of all ages there are tobaggans at last year's prices, $8.59 to $29.99 and all nature's indicators point towards a cold winter; red wagons in all sizes, $4.99 to $32.99; and a uni-cycle for testing your balance, $52.95.

More Color. The world of color has also entered the furniture world, brightening many a home. At The Workbench on State Road, are the Stuns tubular and canvas chairs from Sweden in yellow, green, orange, brown or black, and they are in boxes ready to be wrapped for Christmas, $65 for the standard chair.

We especially liked the comfortable (and washable) blue denim furniture that can be grouped to form chairs, couches or L-units. They also come in tan, starting at $85 for the ottoman and ranging to $150 for the corner piece.

Other colorful thoughts are metal file cabinets which can also double as desk pedestals, folding chairs with slatted seats and a screw-on desk lamp that bends and stretches most any direction you want—all in a range of colors, $15 to $60.

As dreams are an important part of Christmas, there is no harm in wishing for the queen-size brass bed we saw at Viking Furniture, Nassau Street. It is more than $700, but is it beautiful.

On a more down-to-earth note we also liked the early 20th century Vogue covers that have been brightly matted and framed in chrome, $15, and the art deco mirrors with black images of famous personalities such as Charlie Chaplin, $50.

For some time now Viking has carried Artisan House's wall sculptures and they remain as interesting as ever. Using copper, brass and some enamel, there are sculptures of bicycles, a covered bridge, sailboats and a group of houses, $100 to approximately $185.

Miniature Chairs. Many women relish the miniature in life, and Nassau Interiors, also on Nassau Street, has a lovely small Queen Anne open-arm chair, $175. We also liked the small occasional tables, such as an octagonal one, a butter's tray and a nest of round tables with bamboo legs, $144 to $185.

The planters here are perfect for grouping plants in one section of a room. In either white bamboo or woven straw they begin at a height of about eight inches and climb to ones that stand about 30 inches high, $19.95 and up.

The alabaster owl heads are most appealing, $6 and $9; and you would certainly be remembered year-round for a sturdy set of snack tables which come in red gingham, butcher block or several wood patterns, $80. In addition, Nassau Interiors always has an excellent selection of pillows, lamps and luggage racks.

Down in Lawrenceville at 48 Phillips Avenue, there is a store called Genesis that highly values the fine hand-crafted work of their 100 or so artists. Especially fascinating are the candles. The ones by Ivan have landscape scenes; the Gremlins produce shiny circles of rainbow colors that burn for hours; and a third kind reminds us of that traditional favorite — ribbon candy, $5 to $15.

Representative crafts include wooden and sheepskin marionettes from Vermont, $10.95 and up; a blown glass Christmas tree trimmed with tiny red and green ornaments, $8; and some delightful copper, brass and stainless spiraling windchimes, $17.50.

Jewelry is an important part of this Lawrenceville store and the collection includes silver, brass, copper and enamels. We especially liked a delicate twisted silver choker with a pendant of two circles held together by a green eilat.

There is something for everyone at the Princeton Gift Shop on Palmer Square ranging from wood shaving angels in gold dresses to a hand-made wrought iron weather vane topped by a copper Canadian goose (signed and numbered).

In pewter there are textured sculptures of some beguiling figures such as a child on skates or a laughing mouse, $10 to $17.50; and in a pure white bisque Royal Crown of Western Germany has produced a figure of a man standing on a library ladder engrossed in his books, $70.

The Most Constant of Friends

Whether it be an ecological study, a suspenseful novel that keeps you up until the wee hours of a handsome pictorial study, books continue to give pleasure long after the hustle and wrappings of Christmas are well behind us. During the past few weeks we have been noting titles and here are our suggestions.

"The Romantic Egoists," a pictorial autobiography from the scrapbooks and albums of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald, $25

"The Inn Book" by Kathleen Neveu, a field guide to old inns and good food in New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Western Connecticut, $4.95

"The Bermuda Triangle" by Charles Berlitz, the saga of many unexplainable disappearances in this area of the Atlantic, $7.95

"The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" edited by Nicholas Meyer, the first publication of an heretofore unknown and astounding episode in the career of Sherlock Holmes, $6.95

"Strictly Speaking" by Edwin Newman, reflections on the sorry state of the English language and how it reflects the state of our society, $7.95 (All the above are at the Princeton Book Mart, Palmer Square)

"The New Book of Pipes & Tobacco" by Charles Ehwa, Jr., a handsome and fully illustrated history, $12.95 (at John David Ltd.)

"Sticks & Stones & Ice Cream Cones," a craft book for children that includes games, playthings and parties, $4.95 (at Country Mouse)

"Carolyn Ambuter's Complete Book of Needlepoint," a spiral bound book with sampler letters and good charts and illustrations of all stitches, $6.95 (at Clayton's Yarn Shop)

"Fix Your Bicycle" by Clymer Pabes, a step-by-step repair manual for all speeds and major makes, $3.95 (at Tiger Auto) preserving a touch of nature (seeds, ferns or milkweed) under glass, $5; any tennis player would have to laugh at the white racket cover sporting a green frog set for play in a ruffled tennis outfit, $12.50, and teenagers on up would be thrilled with pierced earrings of stained glass beads on gold hoops, $5.50.

Attractive, reasonably priced gifts for the house can cheese tile set in wood all cost about $5.

You will also find contemporary stainless flatware here with white or black handles, $12.50 a setting. The same pieces are also available with clear lucite handles at $19.50 a setting or $12.50 for a salad serving set.

For serving quiche, there are white ceramic fluted pans, $6.95 and $12; for a midday soup break you'll find wide flat pottery mugs with a brown and blue stripe, $2.95; and for a special pot de creme dessert we saw a set of four cheery yellow cups with a matching square tray, $19.50.

Obal Garden Mart down Alexander Street has a new visit The Orient Shop on line of clay planters with Witherspoon Street. Japanese embossed designs bearing pottery casseroles (blue with such names as Mayan or a pussy willow design), woven Hittite. They come mottled, straw cachepots from the white, black or terra cotta and Philippines and a green apple each has a matching dish, $8.50 for the set or you can buy the pieces separately.

Gardeners are always sad to see the first frost curtail their favorite hobby, but with some of the packaged kits they can just move inside. We saw kits for starting a terrarium, for growing gourmet vegetables, or even for raising oriental vegetables if you'd like to broaden your taste buds, $5.50 to $7.98. By the way, the oriental vegetable kit includes recipes and two sets of chopsticks.

From the Bible to greeting cards, birds have remained an integral part of the Christmas season and they certainly brighten the winter scene. Obal has many redwood feeders and several natural log houses complete with suggestions of where and how to hang them so the wrens will be sure to move in early next Spring.

The birds have not been forgotten by Rosedale Mills either. Both stores, Alexander Street in Princeton and Route 31 in Pennington, have redwood feeders including our favorite one that only allows the small birds to hop in and eat the seeds, $13.49.

Other thoughts are a redwood feeder just meant to hold a suet cake, $2.59, and the cakes themselves at $2.19; wild bird seed bells, 98 cents; a long tube specially designed so the birds can extract only one sunflower or thistle seed at a time, $6.98. This last feeder helpfully suggests that because birds find their feed by sight, you place a shiny dish sprinkled with seed beneath your feeder to help attract them.

An extremely thoughtful gift for a green-thumb friend is to plant a bowl of paperwhites (that she (or he) can watch grow and bloom during the weeks ahead. The bulbs are 35 non-allergic, flea and fungus-resistant mattress for old faithful, $4.59.

And we can't end without mentioning Jim Dandy Horse treats which save you from chopping up apples and carrots, $1.59 a box, and the

PJ&B Production of "Hello, Dolly" Joins List Of Previous Hits with "Bright, Sassy" Show

When PJ&B director and pianist Milt Lyon launched into a final, rousing, unscheduled repeat of "Hello Dolly" Thursday night, one felt that McCarter's opening night audience truly appreciated the emotional significance of the lyrics. Several minutes earlier, Anne Sheldon, playing a vivacious Dolly, had twirled, suddenly tottered and then disappeared backwards off the narrow run-around built especially for this show, plummeling some eight feet into the orchestra pit.

She had just completed her applause-filled bows, backed by the exuberant chorus of the cast, singing the final eight bars of the musical. The transition to total silence as she fell was instantaneous, both audience and cast being momentarily stunned with fright.

But then suddenly, after several cast members and a doctor had arrived to help, Dolly re-appeared, waist-up above the stage, white gown aglitter, waving reassuringly to the milling audience, as if to say, "Don't worry, I'm OK." And just as quickly, Milt Lyon soothed the audience with a timely "Hello, Dolly, it's so nice to have you back where you belong." Yes, so nice it was, heroic even; for a long moment, the artifice of the theater seemed to on-foretably fuse with the implausible turns of reality.

Who's in Charge? And who can tell whether this interpretation of "Hello Dolly" had a chauvinist or women's lib message? Despite the "motherhood marches", it seemed that Dolly would shortly be running Herace's whole show, cash register,

Replacement for Anne Sheldon Fills Role Four Hours after Her Arrival at McCarter

After Anne Sheldon took her show-stopping fall into the orchestra pit last Thursday night during the PJ&B performance of "Hello, Dolly", she was rushed to the Princeton Medical Center for X-rays. Because of her self-control, most of the audience and cast departed McCarter thinking that she was no more than badly shaken and bruised, but that she would be able to go through the remaining performances.

But X-rays disclosed that Mrs. Sheldon had six fractured ribs and a fractured heel (story, page 1). The lack of an understudy forced McCarter Theater to hunt frantically for a replacement for Dolly on Friday morning. Qualifications: she must have played Dolly before and be willing to perform it with a maximum of 8-10 hours preparation, including travel time to Princeton.

The office of David Merrick, producer of the original "Hello, Dolly", couldn't help, but immediately asked, "What happened?—the runaround?" Then McCarter Public Relations director Norman Lombino sought to locate Sharon Powers, a professional actress in New York, who had played Dolly three years earlier in the Champlain Festival Theater in New England.

At 1, Sharon Powers was reached and agreed to perform. At 4, she arrived in Princeton to discuss script and choreography with director Milt Lyon. At 7, she ran through a hurried rehearsal with the cast. And at 8:30, she was introduced as "a new Dolly, who would frequently need to refer to a script."

By all accounts, Sharon Powers performed exceptionally well under the circumstances, with two sympathetic sell-out audiences lending encouragement. Director Milt Lyon praised her, commenting, "We had to change the interpretation, letting her instinctively do what she wanted, unless it affected others in the play." Without using the script, he said, "She would have gone crazy because she has to run the whole show!"

Until the melodramatic misfortune intruded upon the triumphant finale, it had been another successful evening of light-hearted PJ&B musical entertainment. Milt Lyon had reportedly instructed the cast beforehand that precision was necessary to make the play "bright and sassy."

And bright and sassy it was, although Anne Sheldon's difficult opening number twice-fired clerks and all. And choreographer Joan Lucas and Milt Lyon introduced a welcome new kick to the play by turning the "Fourteenth Street Parade" into a foot-stompin', sign-totin' suffragettes' demonstration out front on the runaround ("We've Been Slaves Too Long", "Women, Buy a Cigar Today", etc., among the 13 signs).

News Of The THEATRES

suffered slightly from the gravely effect of a lingering cold. But after that, she warmed to her part and belted out her numbers in a gutsy, throaty voice, long before her classy "Hello, Dolly" arrival at the Harmonia Restaurant in Act II—yes, "just look at the old girl now, fellas".

Fast-Paced Scenes. From her opening soliloquy—"marriage is a bribe to make a housewife think she's a householder"—to her successful plotting to marry Horace Vandergelder for his Yonkers feed store riches, Dolly was funny, endearing, and sometimes reprehensible. In a play dependent on her leads and movements, she carried the whole cast with her through a succession of fast-paced scenes.

Robert Paulus was brilliant as the object of Dolly's marriage brekering. He blended a bubbly sparkle in the eyes with the proper amount of stubborn resistance and spendthrift meanness.

After indicting all forms of foels and foolishness, Mr. Vandergelder sang an enchanting chauvinistic tune, later joined by Dolly, that included such contemporary ideas as "It takes a woman all powdered and pink to joyously clean out the drain in the sink". But by the end, Dolly had maneuvered Horace through the outrageous embarrassment of dining with Ernestina Money (Georgine Freedman), the convincing "heechie-geochie" woman, and into the irresistible predicament of wanting to marry her. So, you tell me, was it love, love of money or Thornton Wilder's "Matchmaker" imagination (from which the musical derives) that ultimately won the day?

Enjoyable Buffoonery. By contrast, the confrontation scenes were superbly directed and acted for their sheer, sloopish comedy. Best of all was the hide-in-the-closet, hide-under-the-table buffoonery in Mrs. Molloy's hat shop of Barnaby and Cornelius, Vandergelder's two young clerks, when they discover that their stern-minded boss is arriving as a suitor for Mrs. Molloy (proudly wielding a box of chocolate-covered peanuts—"unshelled", mind ye!).

It is hard to tell who is the most surprised, as Carole Davis (playing Mrs. Molloy) and Darcy Jannarone Playing Mrs. Molloy's employee-confidant (Minnie) convincingly dance, sing and divert the offended Vandergelder from seeing the uproarious shenanigans of the stray-legged Barnaby and the mannequin-hatted Cornelius.

Naturally, Dolly had connived the confrontation and arrived to rescue the four victims of Vandergelder's wrath by teaching them to dance, in one of the play's finest scenes. Here, my earlier suspicion that Princeton University senior Brian Kremen, as Barnaby, could almost steal the show (for his shaking-legs innocence and his "Holy Caboooses" whoops of glee, and other such gems) was confirmed by his exuberant dancing.
And Bill Milvaney, another Princeton senior playing the more serious, solo-demanding role of Cornelius, is nearly as entertaining. In fact, the poverty-stricken flirtations of these two pairs striding through the second act opening number of "Elegance" was my favorite song of the night—"If you ain't got elegance, you can't carry it off".
Philip Graneto certainly carried off the scenic design, including the unusual curtain, painted with an immense violin and trombone in a burst of Thanksgiving reds and yellows. The scene changes, especially entering and leaving the hat shop, and the striking set designs in rough, earthy colorings (except the overdone pink of the hat shop interior) were ingenious, as was their execution by stage manager Patrick Williams.
Beatrice Newirth, as a crying Ermengarde with a winsome smile when kissed by her lover Ambrose (Chuck Mason), and Fred Sheldon, as the head waiter with a graceful "Hello Dolly" greeting to his wife Ann, were both enjoyable in lesser roles. Special congratulations should also be given to the shiskabob waiter for extending his rehearsal string of three successive chicken-spearings (he even began wearing his glasses); to the judge (Doug Langston) for holding still his preposterous, silhouetted nose through a long solo (breathlessly?); and to William Meagher and Fred Kahn as an amusing pair of clump-clumpers combining to be a horse.
The lighting by Lowell Achziger was illuminating, especially distinguishing itself during the soft outlines of scene changes. The costumes of Muffet Hedges successfully evoked New York in the 1890's, particularly the women's gay, long dresses and the parasoled pageantry. But, like last year's production, the suited men tended to look a little too much like contemporary bankers (except for the bowler hats). And the red-striped, black pants of the waiters seemed a curious touch taken more from a Lawrenceville graduation day.
Given the diverse backgrounds of this well-knit cast, it's quite possible that both bankers and Lawrenceville graduates were represented. "Holy Caboooses!"; let's hope Anne Sheldon will be back to engineer the lead next year when the PJ&B presents its 18th whistle-stop show.

Catholicism. "The Abdication" is uninvolved and destined for little glory. The abdication in question is that of the Queen of Sweden who according to accepted history, gave up her throne to convert to Catholicism because she refused to marry and bear an heir.

In a remarkably good performance, Liv Ullmann is Christina, who falls in love with her cardinal confessor (Peter Finch) but despite their fine performances, the film suffers from a leaden, undramatic script. The past few years has shown that literate, thought-provoking entertainment such as "The Abdication"—which translates so easily into artistic and critical success, cannot, despite a fine cast, succeed on film unless there is some conflict, and there is none here.

Arriving in the Vatican, Christina expects to be warmly welcomed by the Pope. Instead, she is ordered to prove herself innocent of rampant rumors about her alleged depravity. Finch gradually turns from inquisitor to sympathetic confessor as Christina relaxes and describes her despairing and tortured memories, primarily those of sexual repression. What results is a kind of ecclesiastic psychoanalysis.

There are some moderately witty verbal matches between Ullmann and Finch, but there is no way to dramatize the film except through flashbacks—all dreamlike, hazy and overdone. The physical production is majestic and beautiful; the script and structure stilted and lifeless.

PLAYHOUSE

The Way We Were and The Owl and the Pussycat, (double feature). The main thread between these two re-issues is, of course, Barbra Streisand and for pure entertainment "The Owl and the Pussycat" with George Segal is the better choice. This is one of Streisand's best comedies. "The Way We Were" with Robert Redford is more recent and traces their meeting, marriage and eventual separation. The two are mismatched—he is an athletic All-American Boy, she a Sica, whose four beautiful plunger, joiner and singer-up daughters must be purity for every cause that surfaces on campus. The two are eventually torn apart by the Hollywood blacklist. It's an improbable love story (he wants comfort, she wants truth) and little more than soap opera in the end.

PRINCE

Andy Warhol's Dracula. After resurrecting the Frankenstein monster into a three dimensional horror, Warhol protege Paul Morrissey has sunk his teeth into the old Dracula legend and come up with a funnier, more stylish and generally more entertaining film.

Morrissey has ladled his tale with the necessary array of bare bodies and simulated soft core sex—it's rated X—and added a generous helping of credible blood, but the accent is far more on satiric laughs than the carnage that marked "Warhol's Frankenstein."

The good baron, at the beginning of the film, is rapidly disintegrating, in as much as he can only feed on Virgin blood and a good virgin is hard to find in turn-of-century Rumania. His male secretary suggests that, because of the strong church, Italy is the only place left for finding "virgins." They're quickly told of a local nobleman, excellently portrayed by the late Vittorio De Sica, whose four beautiful daughters must be purity incarnate. Unfortunately, as Dracula works his way through their veins he realizes that even a good family name is no bastion against defilement: the family handyman—who else but stud Joe Dallesandro—has already sampled at least two of his daughters.

Morrissey obviously had a good time with this and makes the most of his band of many-accented actors by having them play the most outrageously absurd lines with straight-faced conviction. On the whole, he succeeds in making the film's humor as integral as the gore.

occupation as the renowned sex authority, there isn't a shred of authenticity to it. Anyone expecting to see the unspooling of all those true-life adventures that sold millions of copies of "The Happy Hooker" is in for a rude awakening.

On the other hand, those expecting to see hardcore performances and a variety of sexual adventures will not be disappointed. The hardcore action is well played and it is all attributable to Samantha McClearn in the title role.

Miss McClearn is an enormously sexy and enthusiastic actress who frequently takes time out to make pithy statements and little pronouncements about the joys of liberated sex that are intentionally funny, e.g. "I've conquered straight sex and found a new avenue of lust."

She deserves a place in that Pantheon of other high court priestesses of the hard porno circuit, Linda Lovelace and Georgina Spelvin. Her performance will win her her own patron allegiance.

Incidentally, there is another bonus: the film runs 85 minutes as compared to the 70 of "Deep Throat."

Concert by Pro Arte Quartet Features Works Of Princetonians Sessions, Imbrie and Cone

The Department of Music presented a concert by the Pro Arte Quartet in McCosh Hall last week as part of its Chamber Concert Series. The artists, Norman Paulo and Martha Francis, violins; Richard Blum, viola; and Lowell Creitz, cello, specialize in contemporary music, and on this occasion they played pieces by three Princeton composers, all of whom were present in the audience.

The works, two quartets and a trio, were markedly different in character. Roger Sessions' String Quartet No. 2 (1951) was relatively "classical," having a fugue, a set of variations, and a scherzo and trio among its movements, and adhering largely to simple rhythms. Edward T. Cone's String Triu (1973) was the most transparent piece, scored for only three instruments (no second violin) and usually avoiding dense textures.

Andrew Imbrie's Quartet No. 4 (1969) was a vigorous work of great rhythmic complexity. Its organization was described in program notes distributed to the audience (less detailed notes on the Sessions Quartet were also available) as primarily a dramatic structure, with various types of musical conflict being handled and resolved in a number of ways. Both Quartets, incidentally, were written for past or present members of the Pro Arte Quartet.

The movements of Sessions' Quartet are meant to be played without interruption. The first two movements are connected through a high sustained "bridge" note on the violin, out of which the Allegro appassionato suddenly explodes.

At the end of this movement the pace dies down, and the beginning of the "theme" of the ensuing variations movement is strongly foreshadowed before the music comes to a halt. At this point the performers took a retuning break and latecomers were admitted, virtually cancelling the effect of this link.

Fine Understanding. Outside of that unfortunate lapse, which was probably unavoidable with such an integrated work in the first slot of the program, the Pro Arte players conveyed in their performance a fine understanding of the music. Throughout the composition, musical material is very evenly distributed across the ensemble, and single lines transfer from instrument to instrument. These relations were handled in a masterful fashion, with careful attempts to blend the tones of the instruments involved in such an exchange.

At times, especially in the variations movement, it was actually difficult to discern just who was playing what, so closely did the instruments match each other. In the fugue, there was lots of give and take; the subjects and other significant melodic bits were clearly articulated while supporting lines were secure but never intrusive.

One possible objection to their interpretation could be raised in regard to the execution of the "sul ponticellos" in the middle section of the scherzo, which were savagely harsh and may not have needed so much "edge."

Cone's Trio seemed to be an interesting essay in various ramifications of hipartite ideas. Toward the beginning two instruments simultaneously play a melody and its own inversion, while the remaining one plays only accompaniment.

Fast and slow ideas are opposed, and high range alternates with low. In the second movement a major motif consists of two elements, a tremolo figure followed by repeated notes; first two instruments toss this idea back and forth, and later the entire gesture becomes a single unit in opposition to another melodic formula.

Immediate Appeal. The Trio presents a number of easily recognizable figures in well-exposed contexts, and develops them by extremely clear devices. The result is a piece with immediate appeal, but by no means a simple or superficial one.

The performance of the second movement was particularly evocative, capped with a magnificent cadenza by Mr. Creitz in which double stops bounced from one end of the cello range to the other. The long diminuendo ending the last movement featured a demonstration of extraordinary pianissimo control by Mr. Paulo, whose evaporating strands of melody were answered by pianissimo double stops in the cello and viola; but these heavier instruments, trying to match the softness of the violin, became fuzzy and wavering.

Imbrie's Quartet was presented as a vitalic and sometimes nervous piece. Its extreme rhythmic complexity requires great concentration from the listener if he is to keep his bearings. Often one instrument's rhythm is contradicted by another's, and at one point in the second movement a steady flow of sixteenth notes is set, "only to 'go underground' as it is invaded by increasing stretches of silence," according to the program notes. The idea is that the listener should be aware of the sixteenth-note pace, even though it is not being explicitly articulated. In spite of such demands placed on the listener, which make the Quartet quite difficult to appreciate on only one hearing, the Pro Arte people managed to convey the musical realization of a good portion of the program notes. The aggressive and lyrical ideas forming the basic conflict of the opening movement, for example, were plain to hear, although the exact melodic details were not always graspable.

Other major elements described in the notes, such as the complex texture of the first movement's climax, homophonic "arrival" points in the second movement, and the significant cello solos in the third, were also presented clearly.

It is easy to "get lost" in music like this; the program notes were a valuable orientation for the audience, but they would have been useless without the clarity of the performers' execution.

Two other choral groups will combine to present their portion of the concert. For the second year in a row, the Freshman Girls' Chorus and the Men's Choir will sing together with string and organ accompaniment.

The String Orchestra, performing from the chancel area, will play a selection from the classical period. Later in the program, the full orchestra will be heard. These groups are under the direction of Sylvan Friedman.

The Choir, processing in candlelight to brass and organ accompaniment, will close the program with several selections, including "Hodie Christus Natus Est" by Gabrieli. All the choirs are directed by William Trego. Nancianne Parrella will be the organist.

As always, alumni and the choral members will be invited to join in singing the Hallelujah Chorus by Handel. The public is invited to attend.

Musicians' Tapes Sought

The Princeton University radio station WPRB-FM, 103.3, is planning a series of four one-hour programs called "Old Friends," devoted specifically to showcasing the talents of young musicians throughout the state.

The station is soliciting tapes of original material or arrangements to be broadcast on these weekly programs. The tapes should consist of two or three reasonably short songs, recorded at 7 1/2 i.p., and should be mailed to WPRB-FM, Box 342, Princeton, accompanied by the musician's address and telephone number.

Britten's Christmas work will be sung by the Trinity Boys' and Senior Girls' Choirs with Mary Helbig as harpist. Gustav Holst's "Christmas Day," and Choral Fantasy on old English carols and various other carols from many nations will be included on the program.

Other featured works will be several popular carols arranged for full orchestra and Positiv Organ by Daniel Pinkham. An unusual aspect of the Carol Concert will be the singing of four familiar carols by the full 150 voice combined choirs, with the entire congregation accompanied by orchestra and organ.

Also participating in the concert will be the Adult, Youth and Junior Girls' choirs of Trinity Church. The concert will be conducted by James Litton, with Harold Pysher the organist. The orchestra will be the Collegium Musicum of Princeton, Joseph Kovacs, conductor.

Members of the Central New Jersey Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will be guests of the Trinity-All Saints' Concerts Series during the concert, and the Princeton community is inited. There will be no admission charge, but an offering will be received to help defray the concert expenses.

CHOIR TO SING

Concert at All-Saints. The Concert Choir of West Windsor-Plainsboro High School begins its second year with a performance of sacred and secular music Sunday at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Princeton. This concert will mark the first time the group has performed for another community.

The Concert Choir and Madrigal Singers, a group of 15 selected from the larger ensemble, are made up of students from the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades at the high school. The program will include an offering of Vivaldi's "Magnificat," as well as several a cappella and accompanied pieces.

Organist will be Robin McEachern, a student at Westminster Choir College and assistant organist at All Saints'.

PEOPLE In The News

Transportation planner Stephen Lockwood, a 1959 graduate of Princeton High School whose father is a professor emeritus of public and international affairs at Princeton University, was the subject of a cover story in "Engineering News Record," a construction weekly published by McGraw-Hill. The 33-year old Mr. Lockwood merited such attention for his role as a consultant with the firm of Alan M. Voorhees and Associates, Inc., of Berkeley, Calif., in three major transportation planning controversies during the past four years.

Mr. Lockwood's first two successes occurred in Boston, where he pioneered the "do-nothing alternative" in planning for an urban expressway, which eventuated in its abandonment. He then coordinated 85 consultants on a precedent-setting Boston area study which resulted in the cancellation of $1 billion of planned roads and the application by the City of Boston to divert $670 million in federal highway funds toward mass transit alternatives.

Presently, Mr. Lockwood is project manager in charge of a multimodal study of the Sacramento-Stockton-San Francisco Bay area corridor. His guidance of four firms has developed a travel forecasting model which they claim will predict how any policy change, such as changing fares or speed limits, will affect the rider usage of all types of transportation. This long-sought tool will enable public officials to base decisions more on technical, rather than political factors, which squares with Mr. Lockwood's professional belief that the public should be no more than informed participants in decisions which are essentially technical.

Dr. William Z. Abrams, 157 Broadmead, has been awarded a fellowship in the American College of Dentists, which recognizes dentists who have contributed significantly to the advancement of the profession. Dr. Abrams is currently the Coordinator of Health.

Betty Fenton, who as Betty Frohling was well-known to Princeton area theatre-goers, will play one of the leads in "A Taste of Honey" opening Friday at the Little Theater of Douglass College.

Mrs. Fenton, who lives at 24 Chesnut Street, is a full-time student at Douglass in her junior year. The former professional actress appeared in a number of Princeton productions several years ago at McCarter and Theater Intime. She also did work off-Broadway and toured in national companies with Bert Lahr and Mae West.

Mrs. Robert Sappenfield, the supervising representative for the Trustees of the Gerard B. Lambert Awards foundation here, has been chosen as a visiting lecturer at the N.J. State Department of Health.

Health Sciences. Her topic to present to hospital administration students will be "An Incentive Program for Voluntary Change." Mrs. Sappenfield lives in Levittown.

THE LATE FALL SCENE
At Squibb Gallery. Simplicity, balance and gentle harmonies have characterized Japanese art, pottery and architecture and have woven a common thread through the visual style of the work of artists from this nation. Color, rhythm and surface texture have always been carefully combined in order that they might create subtle movement, gentle harmonies and a sense of equilibrium. This is also reflected in landscaping, the design of many commonly used artifacts and in a search for beauty and balance in the most ordinary activity.

Although many living patterns and some cultural elements have changed, the basic elements of Japanese style have withstood the cultural intrusion of the West and have, instead, offered some of their elegant harmonies to combine with Western taste.

The current display of Japanese art at the Squibb Gallery on Route 206 in Lawrence township spans several centuries. Pottery and screens are combined with traditional bonsai plantings. They are accompanied by a large collection of work by Toshiko Takaezō, a noted Japanese American potter whose background and training combine the artistic verities of two cultures.

The contemporary works and the older pieces both offer a rich variety of surface and color. Different textural effects are created by surface changes and varieties of firing and glazing. Takaezō's pots feature traditional silhouettes including plaques and bowls. Moon pots, tall forms and closed forms are ventures into silhouette combined with tonal varieties created by the many different glazes that this potter uses, singly and in combination.

Antique screens are composed of richly designed nature forms and rhythms created in muted tones. A similar style can be seen in the more recent screen as well as in the traditional balances that are incorporated into the contemporary works included in the display.

At McCarter Theatre. The Princeton Art Association Juried Graphics Exhibit reflects the many stylistic and technical directions of contemporary printmaking. The aesthetic qualities of many of the prints appear to be overshadowed by the print-maker's concern with technical forms.

Although the medium does seem to be the message, there are several works on display where content is at least as important as form, and technique has happily been used to implement an idea.

Drawings are included in this collection. There are many well executed works. Intense realism and fine technique are effectively combined.

At University Art Museum. The nineteenth century was a time of richness, variety and change in art. Noted for the artistically radical contributions of the impressionists, other styles reflected the diversity of impression, expression and techniques. The small collection of 19th century art now on display reflects the richness of variety and depth of response to be found in the art of this century.

Drawings reflect many media, a diversity of style and technical variety. Pencil line, tonal drawings, sensitive realism and interpretive renditions can be found in the free style of a Pissarro sketch, the blurred images of a Turner and the impact and interpretive power of a Daumier drawing.

This collection can be studied for differences as well as similarities. The sketch and the formal drawing, pencil used exclusively for line or the pure tone, the range of style overshadowed by the print-maker's concern with technical forms and romantic approach, color versus tone. The interaction of the various styles and are several works on display techniques result in a visual

The Friends of the Princeton University Art Museum held a reception on Saturday evening to open an exhibition of paintings, drawings and sculptures by modern masters from the collection of Mrs. Henry Pearlman of New York City and the late Mr. Pearlman. Among those at the reception were Mrs. William Lippincott, President of the Friends of the Art Museum, talking with Ambassador and Mrs. Kenneth Keating. Mrs. Keating, the former Mrs. Wendell Davis of Princeton, was the president of the Friends last year.

The Pearlman collection is one of the most remarkable in America in terms of its scope and depth. It includes one of the largest and finest groups of Cézanne watercolors in either public or private collections, representing works ranging from the 1880s to a major still life believed to have been the artist's last work. Works by van Gogh, Degas, Toulouse-Lautrec, Soutine, and others are in the exhibition, which remains at The Art Museum until March 16.

pot pourri of expression and interpretation.

An extensive collection of woodcuts and engravings by Dürer are also on display at the Art Museum. Several series, including the Passion and the Apocalypse, offer an unusual opportunity to view this large a collection. Viewing is enriched by the inclusion of a woodblock demonstrating the intricacies of the craft.

At the Drawing Room. English watercolors and drawings of the 19th century are featured at The Drawing Room. The display includes scenes of London, rural England and visual record of continental travel.

Although this work was strictly the result of the gentleman's pastime, both the artistic quality and the reflection of past society and its habits give the finely-wrought paintings and drawings a multi-dimensional hospital in every state during calendar year 1976 to cover the planning and development costs of primary care programs. Construction costs for any additional facilities required will not be included in the grants.

Each of the funded group practices will be expected to serve as a single identifiable source of continuing care for the whole family, with around-the-clock, front-line coverage and an integrated and coordinated referral system. When combined with anticipated patient income from such a practice, it is estimated that the $500,000 grant will be sufficient to launch the group practice past the break-even point.

Primary care practice will require sharing patient care responsibilities, a single record system, and facilities and personnel, plus the expenses and income of the operation. Most groups will also need a full-time administrator, plus nurses and medical assistants.

The Johnson Foundation, which has devoted most of its funds to ambulatory health care, believes that group practices offer patients better, more dependable service and offer physicians more satisfying and stimulating professional opportunities, while also enhancing hospitals' ability to attract young, talented physicians.

The Foundation's president, Dr. David E. Rogers of R.D. 1, commented, "Community hospitals are a major focus for medical care, but their emergency rooms and outpatient departments are having increasing difficulty meeting service demands placed on them as substitutes for the doctor's office. The time now seems right to assist community hospitals and their physicians to expand primary care in the communities they serve, and to provide professional opportunities for the increasing number of doctors now in primary care training."

The National Planning Association, a non-profit organization in Washington will administer the program. Initially, a Program Advisory Board of 15 health authorities will recommend the hospitals that should receive grants.

FOUR ON AGENDA

For Zoning Board. The Borough Zoning Board which will meet Tuesday evening at 8 in Borough Hall, a week and a half earlier than usual, will hear four applications.

J. V. Skillman, owner of the Morris Maple & Son paint and wallpaper store at 200 Nassau Street, wants to remove a portion of his building that juts all the way out to the end of his property line and presently houses the Picadilly Boutique. Additional space would be added to compensate for the space loss but the existing floor area of 4,400 square feet would remain the same.

However, because Mr. Skillman's application requires building within the 100-foot right of way width for Nassau Street designated on the official Borough map, he needs board approval.

If granted, the new construction would not extend beyond the front line of the two adjacent buildings—Hilton Realty and Bellows. The new alignment will create a more uniform configuration for the area, the applicant states.

Approval Needed. Marc Stephens of East Windsor needs a favorable recommendation to Mayor and Council to continue the operation of an automobile repair and service shop at the rear of 30 Moore Street, the former University Laundry premises now occupied by Ramp Cleaners.

The rear portion of the building, formerly used to service and repair laundry trucks and an adjacent yard, are almost entirely surrounded by a six-foot high brick wall.

The particular application is not covered by the Zoning ordinance but it most closely resembles that of a service station which is permitted in a SB district only. There are no bulk or off-street parking requirements listed for this use. The building is located in an R-4 zone.

Favorable Site Plan Review was granted in February on condition that there be no storage of cars in the parking area longer than 48 hours. The Planning Board also recommended that the use

Use of Food to Shape U.S. Foreign Policy Deployed in Letter from Seminary to Butz Concerned Christians of the wider Princeton Seminary community, 171 strong, have expressed to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz their disapproval of his statement on U. S. food policy at the recent World Food Conference.

The "wider faith" community includes students, faculty, staff, husbands and wives of the Seminary, as well as members of local congregations. Their message, hand-carried to Washington last weekend, was signed during the offertory at the Thanksgiving communion service celebrated in Miller Chapel the evening of November 26.

"We hope," said spokeswoman Linda McKiernan, "that those who read the letter recognize that it was written and signed out of a deep concern and with a true intention to take actions needed to deal with the problem." The "actions needed," she explained, refers to specific efforts by the United States to deal with world famine. The text of the letter:

"Dear Secretary Butz:
"We deplore the United

variance be granted for 12 months.

Conditional Use Sought. Nellie W. Huoter, 35 William Street, needs a conditional use authorization to continue use of her three-story building at the same address as a three-family dwelling. A building permit was issued in 1954 to reduce the number of apartments from three to two. Presently, each floor is a separate dwelling unit.

Mrs. Hunter needs variances for coverage, lot area, useable open space (there is none) front and combined side yards. In the latter, she needs 40 feet but has an existing eight. The building is located in an E-1 zone.

Albert and Roma Mindler also need a conditional use authorization to convert their house, 182 North Harrison one-family dwelling at 83 Street, from 2-3 and will be Jefferson Road to two-family open to 8-10 year old boys and use. The larger unit would consist of the first floor and two rooms and a bath on the States' attitude officially proclaimed at the recent World Food Conference. Our foreign policy (as in the recent $380,000,000 grain sale to the U. S. S. R. and the $22,000,000 grain sale to Syria) must no longer be our first priority. Rather, this must be replaced by humanitarian expressions on the part of this nation, so that the starving citizens of the Sahel, Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Tanzania are given the right to live, rather than to starve.

"In response to the teaching and the prompting of our Lord, Jesus Christ, we support any actions which must be taken to relieve the famine. We commit ourselves to whatever efforts we, as Christians and as United States citizens, may be called upon to make in order to meet this urgent need."

Miss McKiernan, a second-year student in the Seminary's Master of Divinity program, stated that a similar letter would be made available for signature by those who were unable to attend the worship service at which the first was presented.

second. A smaller but complete separate unit of two rooms and a bath would be located on the second floor.

The applicants fail to comply with lot coverage by one percent (25 percent is allowed) and with lot width—60 feet is required, they have 50. Two of three required of-street parking spaces will be provided in an existing rear garage. The applicants propose to provide the third along side the garage.

KNOW YOUR PETS

Red Cross to Offer Course. The Youth Services Program of the Princeton Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a "Pet Sense" course beginning Wednesday, January 15, and continuing for eight consecutive Wednesdays. The course will be held at the Red Cross Chapter house, 182 North Harrison Street, from 2-3 and will be open to 8-10 year old boys and girls.

Instruction will be concerned primarily with the responsibilities that are involved in owning a pet. Guest speakers, films and practical demonstrations will be used to show the proper methods of feeding, grooming, bathing and training of pets.

"Pet Sense" was developed by Dr. J. C. Blumenthal of the Princeton Animal Hospital and by Mrs. Jean Graves of the Small Animal Veterinary Endowment (S.A.V.E.), the by humanitarian expressions instructor of the students who will teach the course. The student instructors are from the Stuart Country Day School and are made available through a special Community involvement program at that school.

FOOD GIFTS SOUGHT

By Shopping Center Santa. The Merchant's Association of the Princeton Shopping Center has appealed to the community, asking that all children who visit Santa Claus at the shopping center, between now and December 24, bring at least one canned food item as a donation. The food will assist the disadvantaged elderly.

All canned goods collected will be turned over to Mrs. Pat Eiger, Chairman of the Commission of the Aged, who with the help of the Red Cross will distribute them to the elderly whose incomes have diminished with inflation.

Though no child will be turned away from Santa if a donation is forgotten, parents are reminded that a gift of food for the less fortunate will help to share the true spirit of Christmas with their children.

Do you know how long it's been since a National Football League game ended with a score of 0-0? There hasn't been a 0-0 final score in the NFL for more than 30 years...Last one was in 1943 in a game between the Giants and Lions.

+ + +

One of the strangest things that ever happened to a team in the National Football League happened to the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1940s...In 1944 Pittsburgh merged with the Cardinals and were known that year as the "Card-Pitts" and despite having two rosters from which to staff their team, they still lost every game they played!...The year before, the Steelers had merged with the Eagles, playing under the name of "Steagles" and again having two rosters to choose from, finished next to last in their division!

+ + +

Here's a football oddity from this season...In its first five games this year, Army scored exactly 14 points in each game--and their quarterback for each of those five games was Scott Gillogly, whose uniform number is, oddly enough, 14!...Then in the sixth game, Gillogly didn't play and Army did not score 14 points!

Tiger Quintet Faces Davidson Here Saturday

With the exception of eight games against the second division teams in the Ivy League (Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Yale), Princeton now enters the phase of its basketball schedule in which it will be achieving an upset virtually any time it wins.

The first such contest will take place Saturday night at 8 in Jadwin Gym against Davidson, one of the better teams in the Southern Conference which trounced the Tigers a year ago, 66-47, and has much of its personnel returning. The second will be played against Rutgers in New Brunswick Tuesday night at 8, with the highly-capable Scarlet an odds-on favorite to do better than repeat last winter's seven-point margin in Jadwin. The latter game, incidentally, may be seen on Channel 52.

RECORD PERFORMANCE:
An 11-for-11 mark in field goals by Barnes Hauptfuhrer set a Princeton percentage record in game against Notre Dame.

Turnovers at the rate of one a minute in the second half, and a total of 30 on the afternoon, were the Princetonians' undoing. Notre Dame's press came with Armond Hill on the bench because of four personals, and the Tigers need his agility and ball handling to bail them out.

Five minutes into the second half, they were still right in the middle of the ding-dong affair, trailing only 48-47. But then the press and far greater Notre Dame depth began to tell, and in the next seven minutes, they were outscored by the suffocating margin of 18 to 2. The resultant 66-49 gap was cut to 80-66 at the buzzer.

For Tiger junior Barnes Hauptfuhrer (whose father captained Harvard a quarter-century ago and rejected a first-round NBA draft to go to law school), it was a day of personal triumph. Before an SRO crowd of 9,200 on the court where Adrian Dantley, an all-American candidate, plays his home games, Hauptfuhrer outscored the latter, 24 to 20, and when he hit on all 11 of his field goal attempts, became the first Princeton player in history to achieve a 1,000 percent field goal mark with a minimum of 10 attempts.

The previous record (10 out of 11) was set last February against Brown by Mickey Steurer. What makes Hauptfuhrer's performance so remarkable is the fact that he rarely started last year and his 24 points at Notre Dame were almost five times his average of 5.9 as a sophomore.

Steurer with 16 and Hill and center Jim Flores with 10 apiece joined Hauptfuhrer in double figures. For a team without unusual height, Princeton also showed up extremely well on the boards (31-30 in rebounds, with the thin edge to the home team), but the turnovers proved disastrous.

Navy Torpedoed, 66-55. Earlier last week, a sticky defensive battle that had seen Navy lead at the half, 33-32, came Princeton's way without much difficulty in the final round when Hauptfuhrer contributed a ten-point second half and Steurer clamped down on Mickey Hampton, Navy's only standout player.

Hampton had 12 in the first period and led all scorers when he finished with 20, but could manage only four points off Steurer's guarding while the Tigers were sealing the verdict. From the one-point deficit at the intermission they took a 54-41 lead before the final period was half gone, and then maintained that margin for the final 11 minutes.

With Hill on the bench, however, they ran into trouble bringing the ball through an all-court press, a fore-runner of the obstacles they could not solve at South Bend. Unless Hauptfuhrer unexpectedly develops into a high scoring forward, this will be a Princeton team which will win by very small margins when it does triumph, and errors in the backcourt may cost them a ball game or two.

The Orange and Black will be in action next Friday night at Colgate, to which it lost here last winter, 7-6, when its defense played a sub-par game. Two games on the road with St. Louis University remain on the December schedule and, contrary to other years when a holiday tournament has been booked, the team will not see action again in Baker Rink until a January 11 contest with Providence. That is the only game at home next month for Princeton, which will have seven in Baker Rink during February.

Tigers Lose, 4 to 1. There are several ways of losing a hockey game 4 to 1, including that of beating a goalie in the closing seconds to avert a shutout after having trailed from the opening minutes. To Princeton's credit in a game at Cambridge Saturday against the defending Ivy League champions, the Tigers gave a far stronger performance than that.

Holding high-scoring Harvard to a lone goal in the opening period, they drew even with 6:42 gone in the middle round. Senior Mark Stuckey deflected a shot by Dunc Fisher to give the Orange and Black its goal.

Other Sports On Page 19

For the balance of that round and into the third, Princeton played on even terms with the home team, which is about as deep in talent as any college in the east. Less than 12 minutes in the game remained when Harvard moved out to a 2-1 lead, and the price of playing catch-up hockey then was partially responsible as the victors added another pair in the closing minutes. Harvard remains unbeaten after three games, one of which was a 7-3 triumph over Penn.

Sophomore Mike O'Leary was largely responsible for holding the score down as he gave a fine performance in the Tiger cage. The Crimson had 39 shots on goal compared to the 16 it allowed Princeton, and a number of O'Leary's saves were spectacular.

Snickenberger Voted Ivy League's Top Player; Wins Bushnell Award over 4 Big Three Rivals

Princeton's football team could not handle Harvard or Yale this year, but Walt Snickenberger, its fine running back, last week personally defeated the two top performers on each of those teams in the balloting for the Ivy League's outstanding player.

Snick won the Asa S. Bushnell Award on a vote of the eight Ivy League coaches. His competitors were Harvard quarterback Milt Holt and the Crimson's 6-6 split end and punter, Pat McNally; Yale quarterback Tom Doyle and the Elis' captain and running back, Rudy Green.

The five nominees were selected by the coaches of the seven other teams they faced during the season. The coaches then voted for their first, second and third choices on a 5-3-1 scoring basis.

The award is given to the player rated top in the Ivy League for "sportsmanship, leadership, competitive spirit, contribution to his team and accomplishments on the field." It was presented to Snickenberger Tuesday at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York when the league held its annual Championship Award Luncheon.

Making the presentation was Bushnell, a member of the Princeton Class of 1921 who now lives at the Nassau Club. He was for more than three decades commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and director of its predecessor, the Central Office for Eastern Inter-collegiate Athletics.

Snick All-Ivy, All-East, each unit plus a kicking Other honors accrued last specialist) on offense and a punter on defense. Logically enough, Snick finds himself in the all-star backfield with Green and Holt, while McNally was named twice-as split end on offense and punter on defense.

Biggest disappointment to Princeton was the fact that Captain Tom Schalch failed to do better than receive honorable mention as a defensive tackle. Six votes out of a possible 14 would have earned him at least a tie for a spot on the second team.

Placed there in the balloting were offensive tackle Tony Biagas and offensive guard Joe Zajac and defensive end Aaron Satterthwaite. In addition to Schalch, those earning honorable mention were, on offense, split end Neil Chamberlin, and on defense, linebacker Steve Lang, safety Ed Sheridan, the Tigers' captain-elect, and punter Mike Stein. Lang and Stein were unusual in that of more than 80 players named for first or second team or honorable mention, they were two of just four sophomores named.

PDS FIVE VICTOR

In Peddie Tournament Next. Forty-three points scored by Randy Melville and Bill Martin powered Princeton Day School's basketball team to 73-66 victory Monday over Newark Academy in its first game of the season. The contest, played on the losers' court, saw the Panthers hold off a home team rally in the second half to launch their campaign successfully.

Coach Alan Taback's quintet will be in action this weekend in a three-day tournament at the Peddie School in Hightstown. Play will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, involving the host school, Hun, Penn Charter, the defending champion; Pennington, Germantown Friends and two New York quintets, Loyola and Dwight. Next Wednesday, PDS will travel to Delbarton and two days later visits West Windsor.

At Newark, Melville's 23 and Martin's 20 were vital as Eric Williams collected 29 for the losing team. Ability to handle a zone defense paid off for PDS in the first half, during which it ran up a 40-to-31 advantage on the strength of a 24-point first quarter.

Newark outscored the Panthers, 14-10, in the third period, and continued its surge until it had cut its deficit to 62-60. PDS then regained its momentum and closed out the contest with an 11-4 margin that assured the victory.

Frank Konstantynowicz was in the victors' starting lineup.

showing no ill effects from the ankle he fractured in football. Paul Goldman, a jayvee last winter, not only earned a starting berth at guard but joined Melville and Martin in double figures with 13.

The squad also includes Bill Baggit, a 6-4 center; a 5-11 freshman, Mike Walters, who played briefly Monday at guard; Chris Szueter, Steve Balcker and Bill von Dessen. PDS was 19-4 and won the Class B championship for prep schools in the state last year, so it will have to run awfully hard just to stay even in the months ahead.

LITTLE TIGERS DEBUT
 ... In March of Dimes Tourney. The first glimpse of the 1974-75 edition of the Princeton High School basketball team will come Saturday evening when PHS will be one of eight teams competing in the Mercer County March of Dimes Tournament. PHS is pitted against

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARDS: Although he is only 5-10½, Shawn Craig uses his jumping ability to help the PHS live on rebounds.

Hamilton in the third game. The opening game at 7 at the Rider College Alumni Gym court has Hopewell Valley against St. Anthony. In the second matchup, Ewing vs. Steinert and Lawrence vs. Hightstown following the PHS game. All games will consist of eight-minute quarters in the single elimination event. Winners will continue until there is a champion.

Hamilton is a team on the rebound. After suffering through a 15-game losing streak last year, the Hornets are picked as one of the teams to beat this winter because nearly everyone returns. Hamilton coach Charlie Ross reported that this team's biggest asset was its depth. He has at least 10 regulars who are potential starters, he says, but three who are likely to play are guard Mike Woodrow and forwards Lonnie Upshur (6-3) and Lonnie Walker (6-4).

PHS coach Marvin Trotman agrees that Hamilton will be tough because "they have the same team as last year." And although the Little Tigers do not enjoy Hamilton's depth... "conceivably anything can happen in an eight-minute quarter," says Trotman.

At the moment, Trotman is juggling six players, all of whom have had some varsity experience. They are Pete Watson, the lone returning starter, Randy Bullock, Shawn Craig, Felix Brown, Roland Alexander and Daryl Marshall.

The team will play its first regular season game Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 at Franklin Township High, a Group 4 school.

Scrimmage with PDS. In six quarters of scrimmage last week against Princeton Day School, the Panthers had the edge in the first three. "After seeing the last three, I feel a little better," said Trotman. "After a while we began to come around and start playing." By the time PHS enters the March of Dimes tourney it will have also scrimmaged West Windsor and East Brunswick.

"We could be good or really, really bad," continued Trotman. "We've got the ability, it's really a question of getting them up and that's my job."

Against PDS, Shawn Craig excelled on the boards, Trotman reported, and "Roland played his usually good defensive game." Dave Lion, fresh from the football team, hit on five straight from the field before injuring his ankle.

There is no question that Trotman has the raw talent. Most of his players are standout one-on-one players. If Trotman can get them to mesh and play as a unit, the potential for winning is great.

Right now, he says, the attitude among all the players is great. "I can't ask for anything more."

Trotman also dangled a surprise plumb: a possible meeting in February between the Little Tigers and Weequahic, a perennial power in North Jersey. Both teams have an open date and both want to play each other, Trotman said. The only problem is finding an agreeable date. Trotman said that he wants to have the game played in Princeton.

OUTLOOK BLEAK

For PHS Matmen. In a word, the outlook for the Princeton High School wrestling team this year is bleak. The evidence is overwhelming.

Most of last year's squad, including all of the starters from the 141-pound class up, have been lost through graduation. Coach Tom Murray, starting his eighth year, has been hard pressed to find replacements—even those without experience. He has no heavyweight at all.

Lack of candidates in the heavier weights means that some Little Tiger competitors will be forced to "wrestle light." Underlining the lack of response is the dropping of the freshmen and sophomore schedules for lack of candidates.

There is, a week before the opener here Wednesday at 8 against Woodrow Wilson, very little that Murray finds encouraging. "As it stands now, it doesn't look very good," he agreed. "We'll do the best we can but with our total inexperience, it looks pretty bleak."

Dave Robinson

Fred Elker

Best in Lower Weights. In contrast to last year, Princeton's strength this season will lie in the lighter weights. Starting off in the 101-pound class will be Peter Kahn, who broke into the starting lineup last year. At 108 is junior Dave Robinson, starting his third season on the varsity.

Tommy Severson, a senior, is back after being sidelined last year in mid-season with a malady that limited the use of his fingers. "He should be a good one," predicted Murray. Peter Coffin, who wrestled in a couple of varsity matches last year, is the top candidate for the 122-pound division.

Dan Amarel is a fixture at 129. He also has had limited varsity experience. The only other with any varsity experience who return are Fred Elker, who wrestled at 148 last year and will move up a class this year, and Craig Robinson. He competed in the 135-pound class last year.

Newcomers out for the first time that Murray hopes will fill in some of the gaps are Nohman El Meligi, a senior; Ray Brower, a hard-nosed tackle on the football team and a likely starter in the 188-pound class; and junior Jeff Achey. George Pezdirtz, up from the jayvee squad, is the leading candidate for the 170-pound berth.

PHS One of the First. The elimination of PHS as a probable contender for Mercer County honors is painful for Murray to accept. PHS was one of the first public high schools in the area to take up the sport that is now on the upswing. The crowds have been growing and PHS has had its share of outstanding individual wrestlers.

But, as Murray pointed out, wrestling is not an easy sport to master. "It takes a lot of work and apparently a lot of boys aren't willing to do it."

He reported that he and his new assistant, football coach Jim Beachell, have done everything they could—from scouring the halls and putting notices in school bulletins to personal appeals—to get boys to come out for the team. "We can't get any response," he said.

For Tom Murray, the crowds and the achievements this year seem remote indeed.

HUN FIVE STARTS FAST
Pieddie Tournament Next. The Hun School basketball team got off to a fast start last week by winning the annual Penn-Jersey League Basketball Jamboree held Saturday at the Pennington School gym.

It was scheduled to begin its regular season play this Wednesday afternoon against Blair Academy in the Hun gym at 2:30 and it will be one of eight teams competing in the Pieddie Tournament to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Hightstown.

Hun's opening round opponent will be Penn Charter of Philadelphia, which won the event last year. Also taking part are Pieddie, Pennington School, Princeton Day School, Germantown Friends, Loyola and Dwight—the latter two from New York.

Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, the busy Hun team will play host to Admiral Farragut.

In the jamboree, Hun began with an opening 17-12 victory over Perkiomen, in which all "games" were quarters in the double elimination event. Next, Hun stopped Friends Central, 11-4, as freshman Ron Payton, contributed seven points.

After drawing a bye in the next round, Hun handed Mitchell Prep its first loss, 20-12; the top scorer for Hun Terry McEwen with 8. Mitchell didn't lose again, however, in the losers' bracket and faced Hun for the championship game.

Wins Title Game, 30-14. Hun saved its best for the last when it outscored Mitchell two-to-one en route to a decisive 30-14 victory. Tony Trani was high with 11, followed by Payton who added six points. "We had a real good quarter," commented Hun coach Dave Leete about the championship game. "Everybody played pretty well. We had a relatively easy time of it, to be perfectly frank," Leete added.

"Everybody" for Hun consisted primarily of starters Trani, Payton, McEwen, Nick Brady and Mike Trojanavitch. Co-captain and veteran guard Brian Logue is still sidelined with a sprained ankle and did not suit up. "We don't know how long he'll be out," said Leete.

One bright spot Leete has noticed is the early going is his team's consistency. Last year, Hun was troubled time and again, he reported, with usually one and often two bad quarters a game. "This year we look a little more consistent."

upon last year's 6-8 season. Brick Township High School, top team in the N.J. high school league last year, was scheduled as the first opponent this Wednesday.

On Friday, the Panther will play at home against Rye Country Day a very tough opponent that defeated PDS last year, 3-2. These two games should indicate the mettle of this year's team, still untested by outside scrimmages, but well-proven on defense from last year. What's more, Coach Huston claims that the team "wants to play", in contrast to past morale problems, and no longer will be crimped by a lack of size or over-reliance on one top player.

Senior co-captains Bill McClellan and Ralph Brown will anchor the defense, with junior lettermen Murray Wilmerding and Jim Daubert comprising a strong back-up duo. McClellan has four years of PDS experience. These four will protect senior goalie Ditch Gordon, last year's back-up, whom Huston describes as "more consistent".

On offense, Huston has set up three strong, well-balanced lines, with only one senior in the bunch. Billy Erdman, Steve Judd and Tom Moore will lead a top junior line, that will alternate with a line of two juniors and a senior—David O'Connor, Mike Young and Jeb Burns. The third line will consist of sophomore Mark Zawadsky, John Lifland and junior Mark Blaxill.

Huston has introduced a new forecheck, a new clear and a new penalty-killing system, which he feels the team has adapted to very quickly and enthusiastically. After this week's openers, the team plans to "have some fun" on Saturday, December 21, when it plays the PDS alumni in a first-time addition to the schedule. Huston adds that the likes of Middlebury College captain Fred Erdman, former Middlebury star Buzz Woodworth, former Princeton star John Cook, to be joined by brother Steve, and Jimmy and Sam Rodgers should provide PDS with some very strong competition in the bargain.

EXPERT ADVICE: Nine-year-old Reid Horovitz of 30 Phillips Drive, received last-minute place-kicking advice from the Philadelphia Eagles' kicker Tom Dempsey during warm-up for the Ford Punt, Pass and Kick area competition at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia. Reid was sponsored by Nassau-Conover Motors and he and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zola Horovitz, attended a reception in honor of the PP&K contestants with several Philadelphia Eagles players. Although Reid was outscored in the competition by his nine-year-old opponent, he has vowed to be back next year.
